Taft Urges Price, Wage Levels 50% Above 1939

Senator Advances Program to Combat Inflation; Picketed By 1200 on Coast

Backs 'Closed Shop' Ban

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—Senator Robert A. Taft in another picketed meeting today proposed gradual stabilization of prices and wages at 50 to 60 per cent above prewar levels.

In a speech before San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, he blamed the Truman-Roosevelt administration for the price spiral, and said neither prices nor wages will ever return to prewar levels.

Then he laid down a six-point program of his own for meeting inflation, leading off with a promise to work for prices and wages permanently stabilized above 1939.

[Senator Taft was quoted by the Associated Press as telling a reporter, after the address, that "this price situation might bring another depression if it remains the same. We have escaped the kind we had in 1920. But we have not passed the danger point for the type that came 10 years after the war."—Editor's note.]

Pickets Demonstrate

Some 1200 pickets meanwhile paraded outside the Palace Hotel in the biggest anti-Taft demonstration to date. The marching pickets, mostly CIO, bore signs reading: "Don't Try a Taftburger." Other placards read: "What About Republican High Prices?" "Taft Helped Kill OPA," and "Taft Stooge for the NAM."

Arriving overnight from Los Angeles, the Senator ran through a busy schedule of conferences in the Palace Hotel, where former President Harding died. Tomorrow he moves on to Reno, Nev.

Grain Prices Break Sharply

Limits Are Reached For Second Day

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The sharpest break in many months hit the grain markets yesterday, sending prices of all grains crashing downward for the second successive day.

Wheat, corn, oats and rye dropped the limit in most exchanges. September corn ended at $2.46, down the full eight cents for the second trading session in a row.

Wheat was down its limit of 10 cents, with between 350,000 and 400,000 bushels for May delivery being offered at the day's low at the close, with no buyers.

Several reasons for the sharp break were advanced by dealers. They included:

1. A Government report that more than half the corn in 12 midwestern States is now "largely safe" from frost. Marked gains have been made, particularly by late corn, in the last fortnight with plentiful rains throughout the corn belt advancing the crop rapidly.

2. Fear that Monday's report of the Cabinet Food Committee will recommend a deep slash in grain exports. Reliable reports were that other foods, such as sugar, dried and canned fruits and fats and oils

In a Sunday feature story Post Reporter Edward F. Ryan tells you some down-to-earth facts about the United States educational outlook for 1947-48.

Who governs the Capital's school system, how funds are obtained to run it, and the financial picture as it appears today are covered in Reporter Ryan's survey. It's outstanding reading tomorrow in Sunday's Washington Post.

Witnesses Describe Killer

Slaying of Landlady Angers And Frightens Neighborhood

Police Concentrate on Case but Learn Little Beyond Bullet Caliber

Fear and resentment last night stirred the rooming-house neighborhood where 62-year-old Mrs. Adele Gentry Johnson, landlady, was shot dead by a prowler.

Mrs. Johnson, mother protector of several score G-Girl roomers, was slain by a single shot, fired at her through a screen door when she commanded the unidentified prowler to stand still. Her own pistol blazed twice as she reeled backward and fell, mortally wounded.

The shooting occurred Thursday night in the rear of 1728 New Hampshire ave. nw., where, for the past year, Mrs. Johnson operated a four-story rooming house. Police believe the two shots she fired were made by convulsive movements of her trigger finger as she fell.

Homicide squad detectives devoted all their time yesterday trying to uncover clews to the slaying, but admittedly had little to go on last night.

They kept secret the caliber of the fatal bullet which plowed through the middle finger of her gun hand and entered her body. The slug was recovered in an autopsy yesterday afternoon, lodged in the lung.

Neighbors were unable to supply more than a meager description of the slayer from a fleeting glance as he ran under a street lamp as he fled the scene. He was described in a police broadcast as a dark-skinned Negro, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, and very thin.

The victim's husband, Paul Johnson, accountant for a New

Johnson said funeral services would be conducted, probably

Union Officers Get Extension On Oath Filing

NLRB Allows Until Oct. 31 if Request For Delay Is Made

Stassen Hits Ruling

STASSEN challenges legality of Denham ruling on non-Communist oaths. Page 2.

Many Cases in Doubt

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Union officers yesterday were given until October 31 to swear they are not Communists—providing they ask for more time.

Unless they do ask, their oaths must be filed with the National Labor Relations Board next week, or their unions' cases are due to be dropped.

The carefully hedged delay order put the question of obeying the Taft-Hartley Act squarely up to the AFL and CIO conventions; which meet next month. Upon the policy of the two big labor federations hangs the fate of most of the 3400 unions cases that are awaiting NLRB action.

Ruling Complicates It

The Taft-Hartley Act says the NLRB cannot settle a union case unless all the union's local and international officers swear they are not Communists. If that were all of it, some unions would obey and have standing in the NLRB, others would refuse and lose their NLRB standing.

But the board's general counsel, Robert N. Denham, ruled that no AFL union would have any standing unless all AFL officers took the oath, and no CIO union would have standing unless all CIO officers did so.

Denham's ruling was a strong lever in the hands of those who thought labor ought to boycott the NLRB. They said the Taft-Hartley Act hedged board cases about with so many conditions and opened up so many chances of delay, that labor had nothing to gain there. Under the Denham ruling, one officer in each big federation could force the 15 million union members in AFL and CIO to join the boycott policy.

Sigler Flies To Scene of Detroit Strike

Governor's Action Deemed Unneeded In Garage Tieup

Detroit, Sept. 19 (AP).—Gov. Kim Sigler, threatening to send the National Guard into Detroit, came here by plane from Lansing today to inspect the scene of the month-old strife-ridden strike of 600 CIO garage mechanics.

The Governor, accompanied by State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard, said he made the trip to "look over the situation" for himself after becoming alarmed by repeated reports of violence.

Sigler's threat to send in troops if the Detroit police were unable to prevent disturbance, drew a terse answer from Mayor Edward J. Jeffries.

"If we need help we will ask the Governor for it," the mayor said. "We have more policemen available than Governor Sigler has troops. The situation is well in hand."

Meanwhile, disorder in the strike, which began in a demand for wage boosts and a city-wide master contract, tapered off today. "Flying squadrons" of CIO members continued sporadic raids on some establishments among 77 affected auto dealers in the city but no serious violence was reported.

Embargo Placed On N. Y. Shipments

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Railway Express Agency today placed an embargo on all air and rail express traffic bound in and out of New York City except for full carloads as a result of the strike by an AFL teamsters union last night.

An agency spokesman who announced the embargo said the agency had appealed to Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), to attempt to end the strike of two locals of the union whose members demand higher wages and shorter hours.

The spokesman said the embargo was placed in effect "to forestall further congestion in local terminals, caused by this stoppage of service" and would remain in force

Lane Defends Md. Sales Tax, Tells Where the Pennies Go

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—Governor Lane told the people of Maryland tonight there has been "active misrepresentation" of the Free State's new 2 per cent sales tax.

In a radio broadcast over station MBAL, Baltimore, the Governor delivered his first Statewide message on the sales tax which he sponsored during the 1947 legislature as a means of meeting the State's fiscal needs.

He pointed out that merchants were charged with collection of the sales levy and most of them were conscientiously performing their duty.

However, he added, "some of our merchants have distorted and misrepresented the tax as a 'penny for Mr. Lane.' This misrepresentation is selfishly intended to stir up prejudice and malice."

"Pennies for Lane?" the Governor asked in referring to the "misrepresentation."

"No, my good people; these pennies of yours and of mine—of all of us—are our contribution toward a guarantee that the children of Maryland will have the finest education it is possible to provide. That they will receive this education at the hands of decently paid and qualified teachers, in classrooms and schoolbuildings that are adequately and modernly equipped, properly lighted, and healthfully heated, and of ample size to house the pupils without overcrowding.

"These pennies of yours and mine are being used to provide a decent standard of existence for those of our unfortunate fellow citizens who must spend their days in our mental institutions; to fur-

Million Is Asked in D. C. Budget

Department Heads' Estimate Termed 'Fantastic'; Tops 1948 Figure 50%

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

District department heads yesterday asked the Commissioners for a whopping $143,886,908 budget to cover the city's swelling construction and operation needs during fiscal 1949.

These record-breaking estimates of departmental fiscal requirements—more than 50 per cent higher than the 1948 budget actually voted by Congress—were termed "fantastic" by Budget Officer Walter Fowler.

Even so there were indications that the Commissioners would make currency of them in their fight for a sales tax.

New Sales Tax Drive

Commissioner Guy Mason revealed that he and Commissioner John Russell Young had decided at a meeting Thursday to back a drive for a sales tax here.

Without a sales tax, he declared, the estimates would have to be pared "way down" when the Commissioners begin closed meetings Wednesday to consider department heads' requests. The recent Congress turned down their request for a 2 per cent sales tax.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, engineer commissioner, said he wouldn't make up his mind about a sales tax until he had studied the budget estimates. "But it is my guess that we will need an additional source of revenue," he added

More Personnel Asked

The record-high budget estimate was nearly eight million over last year's requests. It included $53,028,889 for capital improvements and a request for 2187 additional classified personnel.

Department chiefs asked for $51,865,000 for capital improvements last year, but Congress granted only $17,281,730 when it finally approved the 1948 budget.

Congress also chopped down a request for 1500 additional personnel, granting only 672 for fiscal 1948.

"Considering the size of the budget, I think it probable that they have asked for at least as much in capital improvements as could possibly be consummated in one year," General Young declared.

Commissioner Mason said he doubted if the major requests for additional personnel could be granted unless some additional means of income were found.

Income Uncertain

Budget Officer Fowler said it was too early to estimate how much additional income the District would obtain from the new revenue-producing laws passed by Congress last July.

"There will undoubtedly be a material increase in our income," he conceded, "but I doubt at this point if it will permit us to go above this year's total in working out next year's budget."

Last year the commissioner cut nearly 40 million from the departmental requests and sent a $95,930,310 budget to Congress, where it received another pruning to $95,504,737.

Citizens and civic organizations will be given an opportunity to voice their views on the budget proposals at a public hearing October 9, the commissioners announced. The hearing will be held in the District Building Board Room beginning at 10 a. m.

Pakistan Denies Troop Violence In West Punjab

New Delhi, Sept. 19 (AP).—A government of India military spokesman said today official denial had been received from the government of Pakistan that Pakistan troops had looted and killed in the West Punjab as was charged by a government of India spokesman in a news conference Wednesday.

Mohandas K. He said he would not rest until every Moslem, Sikh and Hindu was rehabilitated in his own home, but told his followers he could not succeed unless he obtained justice for the Moslem minority in Delhi. He warned that the Hindus should keep their hands clean

U. N. Debate Is Voted on Veto Issue

Steering Committee Ignores Objection Of Gromyko, Asks Ruling in Assembly

Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 19 (U.P.).—A 14-nation steering committee, ignoring Russian objections, tonight asked the United Nations General Assembly to consider trimming the big power veto privilege.

The recommendation was made by a vote of 9 to 2, with Russia and Poland voting against.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko protested that proposals to amend the veto power were intended to impose the will of other nations—presumably the United States—on the Soviet Union. Any tampering with the veto, Gromyko warned, would undermine collaboration among the Big Five powers.

Proposal by Argentina

The rest of the committee, however, promptly overruled Gromyko's objections, and recommended that a proposal to amend the privilege be placed before the Assembly for debate.

The item was proposed by Argentina, which asked specifically that the Assembly call a special 55-nation convention to amend the U. N. Charter and curtail the veto, which any member of the Big Five can use in the Security Council.

The United States and a number of smaller nations have sought some method of curtailing Soviet "abuse" of the veto power, which Russia has used 20 times.

White Russia Is Only Backer for Vishinsky

Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Small-power delegates to the United Nations General Assembly leaped into the Soviet-American diplomatic fray today, boldly choosing sides amid a flurry of ill-tempered speeches which made East-West tension rise.

Argentina, South Africa, Brazil and Australia lashed back at Soviet Vice Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky for branding the United States a warmonger.

But White Russia fully backed Vishinsky's charges, and proposed that all U. N. members break diplomatic relations with Franco Spain.

As general debate in the Assembly whipped through its third day, the small powers wrangled over Spain, racial discrimination in South Africa, and a multitude of other problems, but their sharpest barbs were aimed at the Assembly giants, Russia or the United States.

Harry Lawrence of South Africa asked Vishinsky to stop "butting in" on the problem of racial discrimination in South Africa. Lawrence recalled that South Africa had "presented a somewhat blind eye to some of those somewhat unorthodox postwar Soviet territorial acquisitions."

Jose Arce of the Argentine ridiculed Vishinsky for thinking "everyone is conspiring against his country." He defended Argentina's action in sending a new ambassador to Madrid even after the U. N. Assembly had recommended that U. N. members recall their ambassadors and ministers from Madrid. Arce said Spain did not threaten the peace, but the situation in Greece did.

Arce said Russia violated the U. N. Charter whenever it serves Soviet purposes ,and added that Soviet use of the veto threatened to divide the world.

Australian Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt told a press confer-

Soviet Attempts To Paralyze U. N., Dulles Charges

New York, Sept. 19 (INS).—John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the United States delegation to the U. N. Assembly, tonight charged that Russia relies on its veto power to paralyze the Security Council.

Dulles' charge was the first American response to Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky's unprecedented attack on the United States.

Dulles, himself singled out by Vishinsky for attack, spoke over the American Broadcasting Co. network.

Noting that paralysis is "not a contagious disease," Dulles asserted that it is "unthinkable" that the Assembly should stop growing merely because the Security Council is "crippled."

"There are many differences of opinion throughout the world. Since that is so, it is better that they be exploded in words in a public meeting. In that way the Assembly serves its purpose as the 'town meeting of the world.'"

Prices and European Problem Await Truman's Return Today

Bronzed and looking fit after 12 sunny days at sea, President Truman will return to Washington today to face a formidable array of issues which have accumulated during his three-week absence.

The presidential yacht Williamsburg, which Mr. Truman boarded at Norfolk yesterday, was scheduled to dock at the Naval Gun Factory here today at 7 a. m. The President's arrival at Norfolk aboard the great battleship Missouri ended a 10,845-mile jaunt by air and sea to South America and back.

With him will be Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, both of whom made the trip to Rio de Janeiro, where Mr. Truman spoke before the conference on hemisphere security and before the Brazilian Congress.

The seriousness with which Mr. Truman views international problems confronting him is attested by the fact that he has reserved Monday for conferences with State Department officials. Secretary of State Marshall, whose ringing challenge to Soviet intransigence opened the General Assembly of the United Nations Wednesday, will come here Sunday from Flushing Meadows to talk with the President.

Marshall's return to Washington will coincide with an important meeting of the Cabinet's food committee, made up of the Secretaries of State, Commerce and Agriculture or their alternates.

The State Department has been fighting to get the greatest possible allocations of grain for export to Europe, while the Department of Agriculture has been reported anxious to cut allocations still further for the sake of lowering grain prices at home.

One hot international issue which will confront Mr. Truman soon is the necessity for speeding emergency aid to European nations pending outcome of the Marshall Plan conference at Paris. Italy and France already have estimated they will need no less than one billion dollars in United States help to tide them over the next six months.

It will be up to Mr. Truman to decide whether a special session of Congress will be necessary to furnish this aid, and to take the political risks such a call would entail. Before leaving for Rio August 31 the President said he saw no need for a special session before Congress convenes in January; what Marshall and others in the State Department tell him may, however, change his mind.

At Flushing Meadow, American and French officials told a Washington Post reporter that assurance of a special session had not been given by Marshall to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault during their recent private talks in New York. American delegation sources pointed out that the Secretary always had been careful not to commit himself publicly or officially in favor of a special session, a decision which can be made only by the President himself.

The French, however, were reported to be still under the impression that Marshall regards a special session as inevitable, since the State Department has been able to find no other method of

Greece Urges U. N. to Curb Her Neighbors

Yugoslavia, Bulgaria And Albania Accused Of Violating Rights

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Greece appealed to the United Nations Assembly today for urgent action to block what she called efforts of her Soviet satellite neighbors to set up a "Communist dictatorship" in Athens.

The Greek request was made by Vassili Dendramis, Greek Ambassador to the United States, who told the Assembly Greece's very existence was threatened by the encroachments of her northern neighbors.

"At this very moment, while we sit here," Dendramis declared, "Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are sending arms and ammunition across the borders into Greece to destroy the political independence and the territorial integrity of a member of the United Nations."

This was the Assembly's first major speech on the Balkan question, which was brought before the 55-nation body by the United States after repeated Soviet vetoes blocked effective action in the Security Council to settle the problem.

Togliatti Calls Masses Ripe For Revolution

Today's Demonstrations To Climax Italy Crisis; Farm Strike Settled

Rome, Sept. 19 (AP).—Palmiro Togliatti, Moscow-trained Communist leader, declared today that large masses of the Italian people were ripe for revolution as this nation in the first week of its renewed sovereignty awaited country-wide demonstrations called for tomorrow by three leftist parties.

Worries of the government were eased somewhat, however, by the announcement of the end of the 12-day strike by one million northern farm workers whose walkout was estimated by the Conservative press to have caused a 26 billion lire (74 million dollars) loss in this food-short nation's crops, including a 5 per cent loss of the rice harvest.

The workers won promises of better pay, six and seven hour days in winter and eight hours in summer, family benefits and contingency indemnification "against rises in the cost of living."

Act to Avert Steel Strike

The government immediately turned to negotiations to prevent a strike of 850,000 steel and metal workers in the north, who went on a 48-hour token strike in protest against rising prices earlier this week.

At the same time the leftist newspaper La Republica announced that the Italian Socialist Laborers Party of Giuseppe Saragat, moderate Socialist wing, had decided to participate in the Saturday manifestation, and to side with Communists and other Socialists next week in their efforts to win a no-confidence vote against the De Gasperi government.

Togliatti denied that the call by the Communist, Socialist and Re-

Woman Hurt by Roving Auto Parked by Traffic Violator

A roving, driverless automobile, parked by a woman who was settling a traffic violation, yesterday struck another woman who had just been in the same police station seeking traffic information.

The victim, Mrs. Atlee Elgin, 34, of 6709 Exfair rd., Bethesda, Md., was injured, ironically, five minutes before her new health and accident insurance became effective.

Knocked down and dragged 15 feet before the driverless car stopped against a parked auto, Mrs. Elgin was taken to Emergency Hospital with possible pelvic and internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

The woman who parked the car in front of No. 6 Precinct station, Mrs. Enid V. Stambaugh, 55, of 4801 Connecticut ave. nw., posted $100 collateral on a charge of failing to set the handbrake

She was in the station forfeiting $5 collateral on a parking ticket when the car drifted away.

It rolled down a slight incline about a block before it struck Mrs. Elgin as she started to get into her own parked car. She had been walking along the side of the macadam street because there are no sidewalks in the block.

As she fell to the pavement, her clothing caught on the car. It dragged her, then smashed against the automobile of Comdr. R. G. Thomas, 4522 Brandywine st. nw. The accident happened at 11:58 a. m.

Police estimated damage to both cars at between $100 and $250.

Pvt. John A. Livingstone, of the Accident Investigation Unit, said Mrs. Elgin had taken out an accident insurance policy Thursday, to become effective at noon yesterday.

Winds Pound City 5 Straight Hours; Gulfport, Miss., Heavily Damaged

New Orleans, La., Sept. 19 (AP). A murderous hurricane neared Alexandria, La., tonight, in a lunge toward Arkansas, as at weather advisories reported the great storm was losing intensity after a merciless beating of the Gulf coast.

Cyclonic winds of at least 90 to 120 miles an hour pounded densely populated New Orleans for more than five hours, and rolled tidal waters before the storm to flood much of the bayou country to the south. Nevertheless, the Red Cross announced a complete check showed no loss of life in New Orleans and no hospitalized cases.

Four Louisiana Parishes—St. Bernard, Terrabonne, La. Fourche and St. Charles—also reported no deaths or serious injuries.

Gulfport Damage Heavy

The storm passed over Baton Rouge as well without apparent injury to residents, although 90-mile velocity was recorded just before the airport weather station blew down.

There was vast destruction at Gulfport, Miss., however, and the Red Cross said the east mole was completely demolished. Creosote tanks fel land burst, flooding the harbor, and the beach was littered with wrecked yachts, some 70 feet in length.

A night advisory of the Weather Bureau placed the storm 70 miles beyond Baton Rouge, and about 30 miles east of Alexandria. It had lost hurricane force, the advisory said with winds dropping to gale force of 40 to 60 miles per hour. Heavy rains pelted the region.

As the hurricane left the coast, fragmentary reports from isolated spots told a harrowing story. The Red Cross reported a freak blow at Apalachicola, Fla., had injured 40 persons, five critically.

At Gulfport the property damage was heavy. One man was drowned and at least one missing. A baby, born in northwest Florida during the storm, died from lack of attention.

Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi ordered two National Guard units to aid stricken Gulfport, and one company to assist in Hattiesburg. Pass Christian, coastal summer resort west of Gulfport, was reported badly hit, and the Guard sent cots, mattresses and field kits.

Up and down the coast the dismal story was repeated — homes and buildings crushed or carried away by wind and raging seas; transportation blocked and property inundated by swirling floods; and overriding all, the colossal job of feeding and sheltering refugees.

The great storm, which inflicted upwards of 20 million dollars damage and seven deaths in southern Florida two days ago, hurled itself out of the Gulf of Mexico shortly after 6:30 a. m. (Central Time) at the mouth of the Mississippi River. With howling power, the hurricane raked the exposed bayou country and churned Lake Pontchartrain into towering waves which vaulted the seawall and flooded a wide belt.

Hangars at Moisant International Airport, 14 miles west of New Orleans, were unroofed and the field inundated beneath a foot of water. A health clinic on

Stassen Criticizes Union Oath Ruling

Political Restriction on Labor Papers Also Attacked as Freedom Violation

Hampton Beach, N. H., Sept. 19. Harold E. Stassen asserted tonight that even though the Taft-Hartley law is good, taken as a whole, two "serious infringements of individual liberty" have developed under it.

He challenged constitutionality of a ruling that all general officers of the AFL and CIO must swear they are not Communists before any affiliated local union can qualify for "assistance" of the Labor Board, declaring millions of workers are being deprived of their rights.

At the same time, he denounced the inclusion of newspapers published by unions under the clause prohibiting direct or indirect political contribdtions by unions as "an opening wedge in an attack on a free press."

Gives Lewis "Veto Power"

The former Minnesota governor, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, called for modification of these rulings made by Robert Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, in an address prepared for a joint session of the Massachusetts and New Hampshire Press Associations.

If they are not overruled by the NLRB or by the courts, Stassen said, "the law should be amended."

Citing John L. Lewis' refusal to sign an affidavitthat he was not a Communist, Stassen said Denham's ruling "gives to John Lewis a veto as drastic as the veto used by Mr. Molotov in the United Nations Security Council."

"It is not consistent with the American approach of individual rights," he maintained, "and is unconstitutional."

Stassen said the "only sound rule is thatthe affidavit requirement . . . apply in each instance only to those officers who have direct authority over a specific union, including the power to authorize

Condition Made

He contended that "if a local union has complete autonomy and makes its own decisions on strikes and other important measures, the affidavits of its own local officers should be sufficient to qualify under the act."

In cases where the local union is a part of the parent organization whose approval must be obtained for strikes and other important action, he said, "then affidavits of the officers of that parent organization should be required."

Notingthat President Dan Tobin of the AFL Teamsters Union had signed an affidavit, Stassen said:

"They have never followed either John Lewiis' extreme policies nor the treacherous Communist labor line. They should not be disqualified."

Referring to Lewis' refusal to sign, Stassen said:

"Consequently, thousands of workers in other AFL unions have no control over John L. Lewis. John L. Lewis has no control over the members of the unions not included in the United Mine Workers. It is un-American and contrary to our basic principles of individual liberty that men should lose their rights in such a manner."

U. S. Free Press Lauded

Stassen praised the free press in America and declared:

"It is my view that no small part of the superb accomplishments of the American economic, social and political system is due to the existence of a free press, free not only to print the news and to comment, but free also to compete and to profit, with incentives for success."

"Newspapers published by unions," he said, "should have inviolate the complete right of freedom of press to print anything they wish on any subject, including politics, limited only by the regular laws of libel."

"To hold otherwise," he declared, "would constitute an opening wedge in an attack on a free press. Many of the newspapers of our country are owned by individuals who also have other interests in business or in government. If we permit a classification of newspapers and restrictions on the right of a free press, we fundamentally violate one of the most important liberties of the American people."

Union Heads Get Extension On Loyalty Oath Filing Date

Vice President John L. Lewis, head of the mine workers. When most of the 13 men on the AFL Executive Council were ready to file their oaths, Lewis balked. Some AFL leaders have filed anyway, notably Daniel Tobin, the teamster's president.

There was more than one CIO officer who balked. The president, Philip Murray, and the secretary, James Carey, said they never would swear. Most of the nine-man CIO council agreed with them. These leaders said they were no more Communists than Lewis—whose mine workers have barred Communists from membership for 20 years—but they said the requirement was un-American and unfair, pointing out that no such oath was required of employers.

The CIO convention meets in Boston October 13, and probably it will back up Murray and Carey.

The trend in the CIO was shown yesterday, when 600 delegates who spoke for 220,000 CIO rubber workers, refused to approve compliance with the Taft-Hartley Act. Their president, L. S. Buckmaster, urged them to do so, but Delegate Jules Geller of Akron, Ohio, retorted, "I am not a law-abiding citizen . . . so long as the act remains on the books." The rubber workers left their policy to be settled by their executive board. But they ordered their locals not to sign any more no-strike contracts, and to call off all they could that were in force.

Meanwhile, the NLRB may act in the next two weeks on an appeal filed by the AFL electrical workers, who asked the board to reverse Denham's ruling that all AFL and CIO officers must file oaths.

The AFL convention meets in San Francisco October 6, and is expected to favor obeying the Taft-Hartley Act, over Lewis' objections. That might cost Lewis his place as vice president. But NLRB sources suggested a way out—which is for the AFL to change its constitution so that only its president and secretary are officers.

Prices and Europe Problem Await Truman's Return Today

Price Issue Awaits Him

From the domestic standpoint, the President will find the hottest issue in current soaring prices, especially food prices—an issue tied in directly with that of foreign aid. Not only have political opponents blamed high prices on Administration policies, but persons close to the Administration have called for Government action to bring costs down.

Mr. Truman's reaction to opposition clamor on the price question may be to charge, as he has done before, that Republicans in Congress led the assault which killed OPA over Administration objections.

The Missouri, named for the President's own State, came in sight of the Naval Operating Base at Norfolk shortly before 1 p. m. yesterday and was greeted with the presidential salute of 21 guns from shore batteries while crews of warships in the harbor manned the rails. The big battleship returned the salute as she slowly steamed up the channel toward her dock.

Children Get Attention

While tugs butted the great bulk of the 45,000-ton Missouri into her slip a light rain was falling and the President's party remained under shelter. Shortly after the ship was made fast the rain halted and Mr. Truman came ashore in a light tan suit with a tan straw hat. He was accompanied by his family and members of his official party.

Although a delegation of high-ranking Navy officers in rain-soaked whites was on hand to greet him, the President spotted several hundred wives and children of Missouri crewmen standing on the dock.

"I want to go wave to the kids," he said, and walked toward the crowd, saluting the children with a broad smile and a wave of his hand. Then he strode the 200 yards to the waiting Williamsburg.

Taft Speech Called Blackmail

Democratic Executive Director Gael Sullivan charged Senator Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday with trying to "blackmail" the American people into electing him President.

Sullivan contended that Taft, in his recent Los Angeles address, "told the country, in almost so many words, that the Republican Congress under his senatorial leadership would give the country no social legislation unless and until a Republican was elected President in 1948." Sullivan declared:

"Taft, of course, seeks to be that Republican President.

". . . He would ignore the pressing problems of domestic welfare that face the Nation and blackmail the people."

The Democratic director accused Taft of "making it plain that the GOP board of strategy has decided to do nothing about housing, health or education before 1949."

He said that Taft's heartless program was revealed by his own words with an arrogance not matched since Hitler took over the Reichstag," Sullivan said:

". . . Taft, who cultivates a reputation for forthright bluntness, jumped the gun in his own personal campaign for the Republican presidential nomination."

Sullivan charged that the GOP and the National Association of Manufacturers have formed an "axis." He said:

"This axis has never troubled to hide its indifference to the plight of those who cannot afford $1-a-pound meat or butter."

Sullivan accused Taft and the GOP congressional leadership of "dangerous talk" and imposing a "dictatorship of delay" in the field of social legislation.

Red Sees Italians Ripe for Revolution

publican parties for the people to march to the public squares throughout Italy tomorrow in a demonstration against spiraling prices had revolution as its aim. But he told the Italian news agency, ANSA:

"There is a will for revolution in large strata of the Italian people."

Counter-Rally Slated

"Revolutions," he added, "are not declared and not made by parties. Parties only direct them and, if they are strong and well organized and have a majority of the people, direct them to victory."

The manifestation tomorrow assumed a partly anticlerical aspect inasmuch as the date—September 20—is the anniversary of the occupation of Rome by Italian troops in 1870 when Vatican rule of the Papal states was ended. The date has had anticlerical significance ever since.

This was underlined today when a dispatch from Milan said the Christian Democrats were preparing a counter-demonstration there in Piazza del Duomo on Sunday at which Alfredo Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, Archbishop of Milan, will make an address. Catholics are the backbone of Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democratic government, from which Communists and Socialists were excluded this summer.

Gregory Harrison, counsel for the shipowners, Taft backed further away from any change in the closed shop ban.

"All forms of closed shop are out," Taft told newsmen. "I won't say that goes for the seamen's 'hiring hall' system."

The sailors union and shipowners, now negotiating a new contract sought assurances from Taft that the hiring hall system will not be in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Taft, who discussed the possibility of labor act amendments with Lundeberg in Santa Cruz last week, today advised Lundeberg and Harrison to consult a congressional joint committee.

Sees Settlement

"As a result of our discussion I feel they can settle their differences without amendment of the act," said Taft.

Lundeberg told reporters: "I'm not worried."

In his speech to 1200 Commonwealth Club guests, Taft said, "We may as well recognize that prices are permanently above prewar prices." He added: "Since both wages and prices have risen, wages are on the whole more than prices. We had better work toward a stabilization of wages and prices at some new level, perhaps 50 or 60 per cent over 1939."

He said increases in productivity and supply and some decreases in abnormal consumption should drop prices to that level from the present 80 to 100 per cent increases.

Favoring a lift of from 40 cents to 60 cents an hour in the minimum wage, he argued

"If we set 50 or 60 per cent above 1939 as our goal, we should then encourage the increase of all subnormal wages and salaries to that point compared with prewar."

In delivering his speech, Taft omitted the minimum wage pledge. Later he told a press conference the omission was "purely accidental."

Taft said he favored lifting minimum wages to "at least" 60 cents an hour last session, but the bill was snagged in the pressure of other legislation.

Taft's program for licking inflation, which may well become the Republican program, listed these five other points:

1. Further reduction of Government spending and a corresponding cut in taxes.

Would Cut Exports

2. Restrict export of products in short supply, like corn and further restrict the total volume of exports.

3. Soft-pedaling his Santa Cruz "eat less meat" line, he said merely "It may be desirable to undertake campaigns for the voluntary rationing of products like meat, where excessive prices show there is a shortage compared with the demand."

4. Reduction in prices by those making excessive profits, as proposed by President Truman.

5. Discourage further wage increases to the extent they mean increases in prices.

Leading up to his program, Taft said return to price control and price fixing isn't the answer "unless we intend to slide rapidly into Socialism."

"We would be idiots today to abandon a system at the very height of its success and follow the rest of the world into government-controlled economy," he said.

Defends GOP Stand

He declared it "ludicrous" for the Administration to blame Republicans for the price increase, shouting:

"Who has been in control of this Government anyway for the past 16 years?"

Taft charged Truman-Roosevelt policies are responsible, on these eight counts:

1. Price control became profit control during the war, but wages were allowed to rise.

2. President Truman abandoned wage control after VJ-Day and later canceled all price control.

3. A gradual modification of control would have delayed the spiral and prices would be lower today.

4. Truman set up an emergency housing program under Wilson Wyatt then fired Wyatt and abandoned the program.

5. Truman adopted the "strange theory" that there can be a pattern of general wage increases without price rises.

6. He vetoed the Case bill which Taft said would have curbed the power of labor leaders to force unjustified wage increases.

7. He made practically no use of his power to control exports after huge dollar funds were made available abroad.

He fought every effort to reduce Government spending and vetoed the Republican tax cut. Taft said a tax cut would have cushioned costs and tended to prevent further wage increases.

Vishinsky Accused Of Mistake, Malice

Men Russian Attacked as 'Warmongers' Make Reply; Statements Alleged Are Denied

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Some of the men described as "warmongers" yesterday by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia said he was mistaken or being "malicious," but one, George H. Earle 3d, said that if "he means I advocate using the atom bomb on Russia, he is absolutely right."

"I know implicitly that the moment they get the atom bomb they are going to bomb us," Earle, former Governor of Pennsylvania, told a reporter at his home in West Grove, Pa.

John Foster Dulles, a Republican member of the United States delegation to the United Nations was among the other "warmongers" named by Vishinsky, who said that Dulles, in a Chicago speech last February 10, urged "a tough foreign policy toward the Soviet Union."

Statement Denied

"I did not make the statement which Mr. Vishinsky attributed to me," Dulles said.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), former chairman of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, said "Vishinsky's denunciation of me as a warmonger is malicious."

"For the past two years," McMahon said in a statement, "I have vigoriously fought for international control of atomic energy because I realized that without it there will be a third and final world war. Mr. Vishinsky has vetoed an effective American plan to do away with atomic bombs, although every other nation but his is 100 per cent for it and believes it to be fair and right.

"An accurate list of warmongers will include every statesman who attempts to sabotage an effective international control of weapons of mass destruction."

Says He Spoke Facetiously

Paisley B. Harwood, vice president in charge of engineering at Cutler-Hammer, Inc., Milwaukee, another of the nine, recalled that in Milwaukee August 5, he had suggested that a better weapon than the atomic bomb would kill but not damage property.

Although his remarks were made facetiously, Harwood said, they were reported as serious ones in the press.

Another on Vishinsky's list, Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in a CBS radio address last night said that "we must have a showdown with Russia."

A representative for Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, said by Vishinsky to have "made a slanderous statement on the Soviet Union," said Jordan had no comment.

Others called "warmongers" by Vishinsky were Representative Dorn (D., S. C.), Senator Brooks (R., Ill.), and Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, wartime head of the United States military mission in Moscow.

"Base, Malicious," He Says

Dorn, commenting at his Greenwood (S. C.) home, described Vishinsky's reference to him as a "base, malicious type of Russian propaganda."

In an interview Dorn declared he had never called for the bombing of Russia's industrial potential, but had repeatedly called for an air force "capable of carrying the armed might of the United States to Russia or any other portion of the world where there is a threat to our security."

Charges by Vishinsky that "numerous organs of the American reactionary press" are "in the hands of such newspaper magnates as Morgan, Rockefeller, Ford, Hearst, MacCormack and others" brought little or no comment.

A spokesman for John D. Rockefeller, jr., said: "There will be no comment at the offices of the Messrs. Rockefeller."

Vishinsky amplified his charge to say, "Morgan controls the following magazines: Time, Life and Fortune, published by the well-known publishing corporation, Time Incorporated."

A spokesman for J. P. Morgan & Co. said: "It's not so, but we have no statement to make."

At Detroit, spokesmen for the Ford Motor Co. said, "No comment is likely."

'Greedy Men' May Drive U. S. To War, Wallace Tells Rally

Philadelphia, Sept. 19 (AP).—Henry Wallace called on Americans tonight to "build the resistance" against reaction with an "offensive for peace, jobs and security."

"We must prepare to meet what I now fear is almost inevitable depression," the former vice president said in a speech prepared for a rally sponsored by the Eastern Pennsylvania chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America.

"And I warn you that threatening depression can mean war," Wallace continued.

"Frightened and greedy men, fearing the chaos of domestic depression, doubting our ability to have full production and full employment in peace, may drive us to war on the slightest pretext.

"It will not be a war for freedom but a war for the salvation of entrenched greed."

"The problem of preserving and extending civil liberaties is the key to all of our problems," he said.

At a press conference earlier, Wallace said the United States Government is dominated by "reactionary capitalism" and added "Wall Street wants—and is getting ready — to dominate the world."

Funds Were Spent Prudently, Wallace Says

By The Associated Press

Henry A. Wallace yesterday declared, "The money spent while I was Secretary of Agriculture was well spent."

He was replying to statements in the published memoirs of Henry Morgenthau, jr., former Secretary of the Treasury, that Wallace passed out so much money during the New Deal's big spending days that Morgenthau once told the then Secretary of Agriculture he was "getting away with murder."

Morgenthau declared Wallace spent more and got less for it during the 1934-1937 period than Harry Hopkins and Harold L. Ickes, who directed the outlays as directors of Federal relief and Federal works programs.

"Wallace's whole theory of spending in order to reduce agricultural production always seemed nonsense to me," the New Yorker wrote in the first of six articles for Collier's.

Wallace, in Philadelphia for a speech, replied, regarding his spending record:

"Members of neither political party can condemn it because it improved American agriculture. The soil of the United States was built up and cotton and grain reserves were established—both of which proved very helpful during World War II," he declared.

Wallace said he was a personal friend of Morgenthau's and "have nothing but respect for him." Morgenthau was a good Treasury Secretary and "did not believe in reactionary capitalism as the Administration believes in today," he added.

Vishinsky's 'Warmongering' Charges Find Little Support

ence that Vishinsky's attack on Anglo-American policies was an attempt to "provoke international friction and discord." It was, said Evatt, just a smokescreen to hide Russia's own weak case.

White Russia thought differently. Its chief delegate, K. V. Kiselev, repeated almost all of Vishinsky's anti-American charges, and renewed the demand that the United States press be denied freedom to criticize Russia "on pain of criminal punishment."

Vishinsky, who grouped sections of the American press with the allegations of "warmongering" by American industrialists and Government officials, formally filed a resolution to condemn the United States for fomenting war. The resolution, which had no chance of passage, also would ask U. N. members to make talk of war a criminal offense.

Kiselev told the Assembly that continuation of the Anglo-American joint chiefs of staff, and the signing of the recent Inter-American Defense Pact at Rio de Janeiro were signs that the western states were preparing war against Russia.

Joao Carlos Muniz of Brazil warned that the Security Council veto had not worked as planned and was a "serious obstacle" to progress. He added, however, that it was "an effect rather than a cause, and reflects the antagonism in the world today."

"The Pan-American Conference in Rio is the only hopeful note in the world," said Muniz. "The crisis today is not just one of the U. N.—it is one of the world."

Soviet Won't Attend World Trade Parley

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Russia has formally refused to attend the forthcoming World Trade Conference at Havana and has notified all United Nations members of the refusal, official sources of the International Trade Organization said here today.

ITO quarters feared that the Soviet's eastern European satellites would change their minds and stay away from the November conference, which will adopt a charter for the United Nations-sponsored organization.

16 Nations Reach Accord On Marshall Plan Budget

Paris, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—The 16-nation European Economic Cooperation Committee unanimously approved today a $22,499,000,000 Marshall plan four-year budget after all countries agreed on formation of a watchdog committee to make sure that the plan's production goals were met.

A committee spokesman said some figures in the 44-page report had been changed in the past 48 hours. He would not elucidate. Undersecretary of State William Clayton said earlier this week that the draft appeared "to meet the views" of the State Department.

The draft report was read paragraph by paragraph. The last stumbling block was a paragraph establishing a special inter-European organization to report on progress in carrying out the provisions of the plan.

"The committee believes, if the means are made available, a joint organization to review production execution and progress is necessary," a portion of the draft said.

"In such an instance the participating governments believe such an organization should be set up by mutual total agreement."

The committee would be charged with making periodical reports to the participating Europeans nations and would receive facts and figures from these countries on their progress in solving economic problems.

Sweden and Switzerland, which had been withholding approval of some provisions of the plan, approved it when it was read in its present form today.

The report will be formally approved by the committee tomorrow and then presented to the plenary session of the conference of nations Monday afternoon.

Bandit Gets $83 In G Street Shop

While hundreds of persons passed by, a middle-aged man held up the Miss America candy shop at 1306 G st. nw., at 5:50 p.m. yesterday, escaping with $83.

Bonnie Paris of 11D Laurel Hill, Greenbelt, Md., store manager, reported to police that the man, hatless and with one hand concealed in a paper bag as if he were holding a pistol, forced his way into the store just as she was closing the door on the last customer.

Told that the store was closed, he said it made no difference, and ordered her upstairs to a dressing room, then rifled the cash drawer.

Hurricane Losing Intensity After Pounding New Orleans

Rampart st., in downtown New Orleans, also lost its roof, and one wall caved in.

The 130-foot smokestack atop the French quarter's Monteleon Hotel collapsed and fell across two buildings. A huge sign was ripped from the top of a department store, and went crashing into Canal st.

One report said "the city looks like a jungle."

A giant air-conditioning evaporator on the Whitney National Bank was hurled to the street in a mass of debris, narrowly missing a taxi. Roofs were ripped from more than 174 homes in the fashionable Fillmore Garden district, and early reports said 60 per cent and 40 of the 198 houses in the Reynes housing project for Negroes, adjacent to Higgins' industries had been destroyed.

9000 in Auditorium

Mayor DeLesseps Morrison proclaimed an emergency shortly before the storm struck, and all available National Guardmen were mobilized.

Nearly 9000 refugees jammed New Orleans' municipal auditorium, many of them French-speaking trappers, fishermen and truck farmers from flooded bayou settlements south of New Orleans. Two babies were born in the auditorium during the storm's height.

Twenty thousand other persons took shelter in 40 New Orleans schools, and countless more found safety in parish courthouses, public buildings and hotels.

At Gulfport, Miss., a 12-foot tide flooded wide areas and the churning gulf poured over the seawall. Associated Press Reported Elliott Chaze said the smashing of plate glass windows in the downtown section sounded like an artillery barrage.

Yacht Club Destroyed

On the beach, the $80,000 Gulfport Yacht Club was carried away, along with all concession stands. The waterfront was littered with small craft, tossed headlong by the storm. Two dozen larger craft, ranging up to 70 feet, were piled against flooded United States Highway 90. One fair-sized vessel rested in a schoolyard.

Sturdy wooden pilings snapped like matchsticks along the Mississippi coast as wind and giant waves tore away wooden piers. The $3,500,000 Biloxi seawall was topped by raging seas. Many buildings were unroofed, and a 10-foot tide rolled through swank waterfront homes.

At Mobile, the disaster committee estimated $100,000 damage at Bayou La Batre, a fishing village on the Alabama coast. Houses there were floating in flood waters up to four feet deep. Three hundred persons—virtually the entire population—previously had been evacuated in buses.

Communities Isolated

The communities of Heron Bay, Alabama Port and Cedar Point were isolated, and grave anxiety was felt. Hundreds were drowned there 31 years ago, when two hurricanes levelled a colony of beach homes.

Mobile seemed to have withstood the storm assault without serious damage, but a freighter and two Navy attack transports broke their moorings and lurched about the Mobile River before they were brought under control.

Nine homes were destroyed in Apalachicola, on the northwest Florida coast, where winds reached a velocity of 75 miles per hour. The Weather Bureau said winds up to 95 miles per hour whipped Pensacola, and 80-mile gusts battered Mobile. One thousand persons were sheltered by the Red Cross at Pensacola.

Toll of the hurricane still was being reckoned in south Florida, where the storm sheared a lane of devastation from Miami and Palm Beach on the East to Fort Myers on the West Coast. Latest tabulations indicated that seven persons lost their lives in the storm, one of them being shot to death by police for looting in Miami.

200,000 in Tokyo Threatened As Flood Bursts River Banks

Tokyo (Saturday), Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The banks of the Naka River, main stream flowing through Tokyo, crumbled under the weight of cresting floodwaters early today, unleashing a surge of water into northeastern Tokyo that threatened 200,000 persons living in the lowlands.

Already the casualties in Tokyo included seven drowned and six missing with thousands dead, missing and homeless elsewhere in the wake of a typhoon and unprecedented rainstorms in central Japan.

United States Army estimates said that 2000 Japanese had perished in the 10 prefectures hardest hit by the typhoon rains that began last Monday.

The flood crest of the Naka defied the efforts of Army engineers and hundreds of Japanese laborers working with dynamite and shovel to keep out waters that already had submerged a fourth of the city under six feet of water and made 50,000 homeless.

"Ten thousand are crying for help," one eyewitness reported.

Army engineers and their volunteer civilian helpers were forced to take to assault boats themselves to escape the torrents that poured ino Katsushika Ward, slightly south of where they had been attempting to blast holes in the dike. They had hoped to release the waters into the wider Ara River where it could flow to the sea.

To the north, in the Kanto plain, the raging floods left an 8-foot blanket of water across a 52-square-mile area of Saitama prefecture and the newspaper Mainichi said final casualties in Saitama alone would number 7000.

Britain Must Sell More of Its Gold

Dalton Sees Move as Necessary To Prevent an Economic Collapse

London, Sept. 19 (INS).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton warned the British people tonight they must sell more of their gold reserves—the last line of defense—in the battle against economic collapse.

"There will be more sales of gold," he told a news conference, "and more purchases of dollars from the International Monetary Fund.

"Selling gold and purchasing dollars are danger signals. There will be further danger signals to all concerned to play their full part both in productive efforts and civic sacrifice."

Britain this week for the first time dipped into her gold reserves valued at $2,400,000,000, selling 80 million dollars worth to the United States.

The next day, Tuesday, she announced the purchase of 60 million dollars from the Monetary Fund.

This two-day total of 140 million dollars probably will last the British only a month.

The gold reserves represent Britain's savings. It is all she has except work and credit.

To illustrate the gravity of the situation in which Britain is stripped down to a reserve of two billion, 320 million dollars is this fact:

In 13 months the nation used up most of the 3¾ billion dollars loaned by the United States, and prices of American foodstuffs and goods now are even higher.

Dalton said Britain will not resume trade negotiations with Russia until settlement of previous Russian payment obligations has been made.

Polish Press Hits Plans for Germany

Warsaw, Sept. 19 (AP).—The government-controlled press today attacked the World Bank as espousing a "scandalous" plan for the rebuilding of Germany.

The semiofficial newspaper Rzeczposopolita quoted the American president of the Bank, John J. McCloy, as saying in London that a special body would be created to handle funds for Germany.

Leftists' View

Laborites Urge Split In Palestine

London, Sept. 19 (AP).—Leaders of the rebellious left wing of the Labor Party urged Britain today to accept the majority recommendation of the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine and proceed with partition of the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states.

In a letter to the Times, Richard H. S. Crossman and a group of prominent parliamentary left-wingers called upon the government to accept the commission's partition proposals and "declare her readiness, if the Assembly gives its sanction," to:

"1. Retain responsibility of friendship with Jewish and Arab states."

The rebel laborites said that British imposition of partition under U. N. sanctions would "reduce the risk of disorder during the transition period to a minimum; help restore our position in the Middle East; and strengthen the authority of U. N."

Meanwhile, the cabinet postponed until tomorrow a meeting in which strategy for the U. N. Assembly session on Palestine will be drafted.

Rogers Asks for Ships For Aid to Refugees

Paris, Sept. 30.—Will Rogers, jr., former Democratic Congressman from California, called on the United States Government today to make ships available to Jewish organizations in Europe for the transport of Jews to Palestine in defiance of British immigration restrictions.

Rogers, cochairman of the American League for a Free Palestine, declared that swift movement of large numbers of Jews from Germany would be the only way the Allies could make up for the "disastrous damage" to their reputations caused by the forced debarkation by British troops of the Exodus, 1947 Jews at Hamburg.

"The Nazis are laughing now," Rogers said.

The Town Crier in Transit Company Uniform

Wherever he goes along his route, like the town crier of old, he carries the messages of local and national merchants who have goods or services to sell.

Who is he? He's your transit company bus driver or street car motorman. The messages he takes to every corner of Washington are neatly arranged in his vehicle. They're the Transitads (car cards) you see overhead as you ride the street car or bus.

Of course, the driver's or motorman's most important job is to transport you swiftly and safely to your destination, just as the old-time town crier's main job was to proclaim the news. But, in both cases, the natural by-product of the large audiences gathered was to convey the selling messages of merchants and business men.

Today, advertisers using Transitads (car cards) have the opportunity to convey their selling messages to an average 1½ million Washington transit-riders—every day.

So, as you ride the street car or bus, take note of the Transitads and see what messages the town crier in Transit Company uniform has to convey.

Steering Committee Asks U. N. to Consider Veto Issue

joined the Steering Committee majority in recommending the debate. France, China and India declined to vote. The Assembly itself must confirm the committee decision.

Defines "Battle Lines"

Tonight's ballot further defined the Soviet-American "battle lines" in their tense duel for moral leadership of the world.

Gromyko, making a plea for small-nation support for the Soviet, warned that the little countries have a stake in maintaining the veto, because unless the big powers agree among themselves, the smaller ones will fall victim to aggression.

Gromyko said the vto, through which any member of the big five can block important Security Council actions, was "the most essential" part of the U. N. structure. Abolition of the veto, he said, would harm all of U. N.

"Certain influential circles are behind such complaints (against the veto) and it must be concludede that attempts are being made to establish a situation in which it would be easier to impose on the Soviet Union and others the will of some other states," Gromyko said.

"The Soviet Union can not agree with such a situation—. It can not depend on the objectivity of even the majority in U. N.

Gromyko, bitterly opposing any Assembly debate on the veto, said that it was proposed originally by the late President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

Debate on Admissions

Gromyko's outburst followed relatively mild Soviet objections to another item recommending Assembly debate on the need for a change in voting procedure on this issue by a vote of 10 to 3, with Russia, Poland and Brazil objecting. India declined to vote.

Russia has vetoed five U. N. membership applications, while other members of the Big Five blocked the applications of five other states. Under present procedure, membership applications are acted on first by the Security Council, where decisions may be taken by a two-thirds vote. But the 10 controversal applications never got through the Security Council.

American Yacht Held by Reds Finally Arrives in Stockholm

Stockholm, Sept. 19 (AP).—The crew of the sailing yacht Sea Shark, two men and a girl who were held by the Russians for three weeks in the prohibited Porkkala coastal area of Finland, arrived aboard their craft today after riding out a storm which caused them to be reported missing for a second time.

The trio, Miss Anne Blumenfeld of San Rafael, Calif., Robert Storch of Newark, N. J., and Gordon Thomas McGill Lawson of Glasgow, Scotland, had an advanturous 12-day crossing from Helsinki, but all were well.

"We had several days of oppressive interrogations," said 20-year-old Miss Blumfeld.

"The Russians thought we were spies, although we told them 100 times that we were tourists.

"'Tourists? What is that?' they asked us. They don't seem to be used to that kind of international relationships. 'If you are tourists, where do you get your money from, since you are not working?' they asked us.

"I told them I get it from my daddy."

Miss Blumenfeld said when she and her two friends asked where they were, the Russian replied:

"'Don't you know you are in Russian territory, in Porkkala?'

"I still didn't have the slightest idea where we were, but we certainly found out," she said.

The tourists had run short of food. The Russians gave them cereals for porridge.

"Then," she continued, "one day a Russian came rowing out to us, pointed at a certain hour on his watch, and said, 'Say hello to Helsinki.' We thought it was a joke, but it was really true. We were free."

AMG Appeals For Economic, Political Experts

Frankfurt, Sept. 19.—The American Military Government has issued an appeal to Washington to send over recognized political and economic administrators, now that the United States is fully committed to the basic principle to make Western Germany function, it was learned here today from an authoritative source.

Two former governors, Murray van Waggoner of Michigan and Chauncey Sparks of Alabama, are shortly to arrive in Germany to consult with General Clay on basic occupation problems. They follow former Wisconsin Governor Pholip M. LaFollette and Robert Moses, New York State park commissioner.

Undoubtedly, Van Waggoner and Sparks will be offered key jobs in Military Government, as were Moses and LaFollette. Questioned in his press conference yesterday, General Clay said h was in the market for "talented men" needed in the administration of the occupation.

Firemen Battle Blaze Under Street Surface

Mansfield O.hio, Sept. 19 (AP).—A street caught fire in Mansfield last night.

Firemen fought a stubborn subsurface blaze under 300 feet of Central ave., a residential area more than a mile from downtown Mansfield, four four hours, ending at 1 a. m. today.

Wisps of smoke still rose from the avenue as workmen began tearing up the oil surface to get at the fire cause.

Fire Chief L. J. Steele theorized that sand with a magnesium content under the surface caught fire from spontaneous combustion.

"This is the first time I ever had a street catch on fire," Chief Steele said.

Nanking, China, Sept. 19 (U.P.)—An army court martial today acquitted Sergt. Joseph Cervone of the Bronx, New York City, of charges that he took part in the slayings of two Chinese here August 1.

Measuring The Problem

Going beyond their record performance of last year, department heads of the District government have turned in budget estimates totaling more than 144 million dollars. Congress had considerable difficulty in balancing a budget of 95 million dollars for the District this year, even with the enactment of a stiff tax bill. So it may be taken for granted that the departmental estimates will be sharply trimmed. Nevertheless, we are glad that the department heads have taken the initiative in making the accumulated wants of the District known.

Long neglect of District institutions before the war and the virtual suspension of capital improvements during the war have piled up an appalling list of urgent community projects waiting to be authorized and financed. The result has been widespread criticism—criticism that in most instances has been well founded. The District's hospitals and clinics have been desperately short of building space, equipment and personnel. Hundreds of children have been given only part-time schooling for want of buildings in which to house them. Hunger and exposure have lurked on the fringe of the public assistance program. Many of the city's welfare institutions have been recognized as a disgrace to the Capital. These factors must necessarily be taken into account by department heads when they are making their budgetary estimates. It is their responsibility to make requests for funds that would put their departments on a par with progressive municipal governments in cities where the people control their own local affairs.

The result is to focus public and official attention upon the magnitude of the District's problem. Doubtless everyone realizes the impossibility of carrying out in a single year all of the desirable projects included in the departmental estimates. It will be up to the Commissioners and Congress to assign priorities and necessarily to postpone some essential but less urgent projects for which funds have been requested. But we think it is desirable for the community, and especially for Congress, to realize how far short the present 95-million-dollar budget falls of giving the community the type of municipal service that it ought to have. And while these budgets are being scrutinized, as they must be, for items that can be dropped or reduced, we hope that at least equal energy will be spent toward the tapping of new sources of revenue or the borrowing of funds for urgent capital improvements, or both, to bring our municipal institutions abreast of their responsibilities.

Vishinsky's Rabbit

It must have amazed the delegates at Lake Success to find the Vishinsky tirade against America reported as a sensation. Actually the same speech has been trotted out whenever the Russians want to block progress. For instance, during the Paris Peace Conference of last year Secretary Byrnes had to sit through warning after warning by Molotov that western Europe was about to be gobbled up by American imperialism. He roused the peace platform for the dual purpose of impugning the good faith and scoring the aims in Europe of the United States. In the succeeding General Assembly the Russians launched similar broadsides against American policy. What brought about the Vishinsky tirade so early in the proceedings of the second regular Assembly was Secretary Marshall's assumption of the diplomatic initiative. The object was to smother with sound and fury the Marshall program of action for what the Canadian delegate called the vitalization of the nerveless and feeble United Nations.

The technique of bluster and bluff is a Russian device that dates back long before the Bolsheviks came to power. Perhaps one of the most acute and prescient witnesses to the character of Russian government was, of all people, Karl Marx. Marx used to be a prolific newspaper writer on diplomatic affairs, and a Turkish editor recently prepared a digest, with copious excerpts, of his journalism for the magazine, Freedom and Union. Marx was intent on warning Europe against Russian expansionism. He said that a trump in Russia's diplomatic game consisted "of doing nothing, and creating for others a situation hard to endure which made them finally inclined to compromise," the while they exploited fear in the outside world. In this latter connection the Russians, he said, were always prepared to discover some sort of ghost to scare Europe with. These observations were made on the eve of the Crimean War a hundred years ago. They might have been made of the present-day world situation. Europeans, as our returning travelers are telling us, has had it dinned into their ears via the Moscow radio that America is imperialistic, and some are coming to believe it, though, if a poll were taken, we have not the slightest doubt of whom they are really afraid.

For classic examples of warmongering any script from the Moscow radio would suffice. The tragedy is that the incitement from Moscow conforms to the Marxist dogma on war as interpreted by Stalin. A year ago last February 9 Stalin said war was inevitable as long as America was organized "on the basis of monopoly capitalism." Succeeding propaganda has been aimed at distorting world events in order to prove this thesis. If Russia does not create the thing she contemplates, it will not be Russia's fault. On the contrary, American policy is bent upon pacification and reconstruction, though every item in this program is sabotaged by Russian do-nothingness, if it is not attacked either as warmongering or imperialism. How easy Russian policy is, how difficult ours, when Russia has no more policy than to throw monkey wrenches into world organization.

U. N.'s Teeth

One of the improvements of the United Nations over the League of Nations was the clause in the Charter providing for a set of teeth for the United Nations. The purpose, of course, was to aid the Security Council in enforcing the peace. But, along with the veto-throttling of the enforcement agency, the Russians have prevented any significant move in the direction of setting up an international police force. For 15 months the representatives of the Allied Chiefs of Staff wrangled over procedure. Eventually, last May, under the prodding of President Truman, the U. N. Military Staffs Committee came out with a report. This was an extraordinary document, for, aside from itemizing agreement on minor details of procedure, it merely advertised the differences with the Russians. It did nothing, in short, to carry out the requirement of the Charter.

The report revealed that there was no approach to agreement even on fundamentals. Russia would not agree on the size of Unoforce, nor where and how it should be held ready. At Russia's insistence all military contributions had to be equal in strength and composition. Thus, if one of the Big Five (say, China) had no four-engined bombers, then Unoforce could have no four-engined bombers. The Unoforce, in other words, would be as weak as the weakest member of the combination. This was an example of the fatuity to which the Russians had reduced the denturing of the United Nations. However, Russia's obstructionism was all of a piece with its other activities in emasculating the United Nations. And further work by the Military Staffs Committee has been made superfluous not only by Russian tactics but also by the nullification of the Security Council. There is no point in having a Unoforce if there is no possibility of getting a decision out of the Security Council for the use of it.

What the Russians were afraid of, and what they stressed throughout the deliberations, was the weakening of Article 2 of the Charter. This says that "the Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of its members." Adherence to national sovereignty has been used to hamstring most of the international activity, notably the Atomic Energy Commission, promoted under United Nations aegis. There has been one notable exception: any United Nations activity in disbursing American money. Is there any wonder that in this troubled world the nations are being thrust back upon the tightening of regional arrangements for their security? Mr. Vishinsky rails at the United States for maintaining the Combined Chiefs of Staffs Committee with the British. We ourselves are glad of it, as we are of the security arrangement with Canada, and of that with the American republics. Collective security has become a will o' th' wisp solely because of Russia's refusal to carry into effect the provisions in the U. N. Charter for an international police force.

What Price Beauty?

One sign of the way the world may be going for women has manifested itself in Milan where, in the ubiquitous beauty contest, candidates' work records were included in their beauty qualifications. In addition to shapely ankles, contestants were required to show credentials on regular attendance at their jobs. After being looked over for glamour, they were questioned about their work, family conditions and plans for the future. Such professional beauties as mannequins, models and leisure time women were banned from entry.

This is in line with the new European trend toward associating hard work and attention to duty with ideal womanhood. European nations are facing a labor shortage in carrying out their huge reconstruction programs. But some of their women, tired from war's labors, are reluctant to return to factory and store. Many, also, are caught in the world-wide nostalgia for a sheltered life. Hence the carrot rather than the stick is being used to get them back on the job and to stimulate their pride in being good workers who will rebuild their countries.

This country, which has the dubious distinction of originating the modern beauty contest, has also been developing new beauty qualifications in keeping with the times. Personality and talent have become almost as important as measurements. Beauty contestants, having Hollywood as their goal, recognize they need something more than the ability to draw an audience when they appear in bathing suits. Moreover, the majority of would-be Miss Americas are employed, and many are training for the high ambitions they cherish. More talent, personality and intelligence are likely to be required of future beauty queens as beauty standards advance. Such homely virtues as being good workers may not enter American specifications. But American beauties will have to have some skills to live by as millionaire stage door Johnnies, Diamond Jim Bradys and orchestra row Midases become increasingly scarce.

Martin's Information

Like the late Senator Borah, whose private sources of information told him in 1939 that there was no danger of an outbreak of war in Europe, Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr., has his own "very good sources" overseas. They tell him categorically that Europe is in no immediate danger of starvation. Therefore, the Republican leader concludes, there is absolutely no need for a special session of Congress this fall. We confess, for our own part, that we should find Mr. Martin's judgment of the situation rather more reassuring had he not in the very same interview acknowledged the pathetic inadequacy of his background.

However reliable Mr. Martin's unofficial sources of information, the painful fact is he has no official sources. The Department of State has confided nothing in him. Neither the President himself nor any member of the White House staff has seen fit to tell the Speaker of the House anything about the reports that have been coming in from our trained observers abroad concerning crop failures and dollar shortages. "Nothing more has been presented to my attention," the Speaker said rather pathetically, "more than when Congress went out of here in August." And he added in a tone that must have been tart: "If the Administration wants a special session it has been very negligent."

Indeed it has! Enlistment of the support of legislative majority leaders such as Mr. Martin is an indispensable first step in making a special session effective. And Mr. Martin's support can be won only by treating him as a partner instead of as an outcast. From the point of view of practical politics, the isolation which the Administration has forced upon the Speaker of the House is altogether deplorable. And from another point of view, it is to be regretted even more: under the recently (and unfortunately) adopted Succession Act, the Speaker stands next in line for the Presidency.

Grain Cuts

The drastic cut in this country's grain exports, announced to begin in November, affords a perfect example of the subordination of policy to expediency—and a wholly illusory expediency at that time. The cut was prompted, apparently, by rampaging speculation in grains, speculation which has sent prices skyrocketing. But it is doubtful, in spite of the initial price break consequent upon the announcement, that it will have any real effectiveness in checking the runaway market. For, while the cut is extremely severe in terms of our total grain exports (November shipments are to be 43 per cent below the July-October monthly average) it is negligible in terms of our total production and home consumption. It can arrest the spiraling of prices only if it is to be continued with increasing severity throughout the winter.

But this would mean nothing less than an outright subversion of our foreign policy. The Marshall Plan is not a plan which can be set in operation by starving people. The United States is unlikely to hold the friendship of Europeans if it lets them go hungry while grain is fed in this country to livestock. Our grain must be shared with our fellow humans. This is an inescapable premise of policy. The problem, then, is how to do this most effectively with the smallest dislocation to our domestic economy. We believe the answer lies in forthright action—a special session of Congress to place in the President's hands power to allocate foodstuffs and to reinstitute a system of rationing so that scarce supplies can be equitably distributed at home.

Another Victim

The murder of Mrs. Adele Gentry Johnson by a neighborhood prowler underlines the need for legislation forbidding the carrying of deadly weapons except for military use and purposes of law enforcement. For Mrs. Johnson has fallen victim to the widespread delusion that protection against molestation can be insured by arming oneself to resist or frighten away assailants and suspicious characters. Thousands of lives have been needlessly sacrificed because peaceful citizens like Mrs. Johnson have tried to defend themselves against holdup men and housebreakers by flourishing pistols or trying to shoot it out. The odds are all in favor of the criminal in duels of this kind. The best defense against personal injury lies in no defense. It is the duty of the law enforcement officials to run down and punish criminals. Their task is made all the harder by abortive amateur attempts to deal with criminals on their own ground.

MEADOWLARK

From what tall vantage, poised between the prairie of the sky and grassy plains of earth are you now perched, to gossip with the wind,
or serenade the clouds
with clear, melodious song?
Yet not for long will wings lie still (folded fanwise); the white tail feathers soon will lift again in flight, like outspread sails on the soft ocean of the air . . . or in quick, fluttering motion splash through the summer noon, till once again you anchor to some tree, to spill the pent up, crystal melody.

War Contract Audits

In the last few weeks the General Accounting Office, in the person of the Comptroller General, Mr. Lindsay Warren, has been issuing statements to the effect that Congress had blundered badly in passing the Contract Settlement Act of 1944, in that this act did not allow audit by his office of settlements of claims for contract terminations before payment was made to war contractors. This view he states is supported by evidence of fraud and overpayment in a number of cases now under investigation.

The number of such cases cited seems surprisingly small in proportion to the heated charges, considering that Mr. Warren's office has now had two years to conduct as many postaudits as he wished. He states that it has now completed less than 4 per cent of them. Aside from this, however, his statements give a completely inaccurate view of the original motive behind the writing of that 1944 act. The exclusion of the GOA's prior-audit powers was no blunder, but very much to the point. Mr. Warren does not mention the fact that during the war it was confidently stated that the cessation of hostilities would bring 60 per cent of our industry to a standstill, with a year or perhaps longer needed for reconversion to peacetime economy. Nor does he mention the huge sums saved in terms of national income when that standstill period proved far lighter than expected. The settlement of claims with all possible speed helped greatly to ease the conversion period.

Particularly, Mr. Warren does not mention the reason for the proscribing of his office's activity. The great load of settlements with thousands of contractors would undoubtedly still be stalled, many of the small outfits having been forced out of business under a prior GAO audit system, the loss to industry and to the Treasury in taxes far outweighing the losses now trumpeted in all directions.

Without doubt there has been overpayment, and in some cases fraud. The contracting agencies used considerably more care than Mr. Warren credits them with, but under the terrific pressure for speed enforced on them, errors were bound to occur. The over-all national economy has come up, however, with the balance entirely on the bright side. A. F.

Planned Inflation

Everyone is asking what has caused the rapid rise in the price of foods during the past two months. The answer to this question seems obvious. Business Week reports that the Commodity Credit Corporation purchased no less than 104 million bushels of wheat or flour equivalent during that period. This is at a rate considerably greater than we have been exporting. But these purchases were made for export. The British have stopped their purchases, however, and the French and Italian credits are reported substantially exhausted. So it is quite evident that the Commodity Credit Corporation is making its purchases in the confident expectation that Congress will grant the blank-check stopgap credit for Europe suddenly demanded by our State Department.

Just at the time when Government purchases should be tapering off or stopping, these purchases have been stepped up beyond all reason. This, coupled with the almost daily statements of the Department of Agriculture and other Government bureaus, that prices will rise over the next few months, is evidently having the desired inflationary effect. It looks as though a congressional investigation would be in order to find out just what is back of this apparently well-planned program to bring about inflation. It could be an attempt on the part of our New Dealers to bring back rationing and price controls.

Criticism Of Bevin

Mr. Barnet Nover, in The Washington Post of September 13, took occasion not only to criticize some of Mr. Bevin's recent suggestions concerning redistribution of gold, etc., but also to indulge himself in some highly uncomplimentary personalities directed at Mr. Bevin personally.

It seems to me that the unkind personalities directed at Mr. Bevin were richly undeserved.

Mr. Bevin has not hesitated to stand and be counted with us through some very sticky going, and this in the face of a great deal of criticism from within his own party. If, sometimes, under the stress of the very serious and pressing problems with which he is faced, Mr. Bevin advances suggestions with which we do not agree, it would seem to me that we might reasonably limit ourselves to objective criticism of the suggestions, without attacking Mr. Bevin personally. Red Cross Stamp

In order to alleviate suffering in Europe this winter, why doesn't our National Red Cross Organization get out a special stamp now to sell to the American people and use that money for food and fuel for those in need?

I believe that the American people will gladly help those in need in Europe. We would know that proper distribution of food and fuel would be accomplished through their organization.

Margarine Tax

For the sake of clarity, I would like to give the context of a quotation from the June 18, 1941, issue of The Dairy Record. One sentence of this quotation appeared in the letter "Margarine Tax" in The Washington Post of September 15. Let's keep the record straight. The complete context is as follows:

"We must now recognize that we are dealing with an implacable enemy who is never satisfied and who will seek to encroach as long as he exists. In short, the dairy industry must set as its goal the complete extermination of oleomargarine. It must never rest until the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine has been outlawed in this country. The industry must abandon its traditional attitude that the question is solely one of dietetic values and honest presentation of claims. It must recognize that it is a battle of survival, and the interest of 20 million farmers are paramount to those of a score of margarine manufacturers." C. S. TRIMBLE.

Child's Rescue

Why should the valuable lives of our policemen (one at least a family man at that) be risked to rescue a disobedient little boy from an apparently perfectly safe bathroom? Had he been completely ignored and allowed to remain in the room to his heart's content, when he became sleepy or hungry no doubt he would have clamored to be released. If any danger threatened him in the bathroom, why not remove the door?

"Loyalty And Logic"

Which issue of your paper is the bewildered reader to believe? The September 13 issue, to judge by your editorial, "Prohibitory Index," was supervised by somebody who truly subscribes to American doctrines of human freedom. But the September 14 issue, in which the same subject is treated in the editorial "Loyalty and Logic," might have been edited by an elderly member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

On Saturday The Washington Post talks about the "hysteria" being whipped up against Federal employes who have dared to join any organization proscribed by the Attorney General. On Sunday, in a twisted and unfair report on Dr. Commager's article in Harper's, The Washington Post insists that "there is no question of 'silencing' anybody."

Perhaps the confusion is due to the heat.

HENRY F. PRINGLE.

Washington.

In your recent "Loyalty and Logic" editorial we have an attempt to whitewash an arrogant and inexcusable plan to substitute the police state for a democratic one. With the possible exception of an employe's union affiliation, all of the information collected by the present loyalty check had been turned in previously and would have been available from Civil Service or military records.

You claim there is no intention to "silence" anyone, but that is just what the present intimidation campaign accomplished. The trend among Government employes is to never discuss anything more serious than the latest soap opera or the comics while at work, and some of them have been so frightened they are afraid to let a copy of PM or the New Republic expose itself in what used to be the sanctity of their homes.

The fact that Emerson, Jefferson or Paine were not civil service employes at the same time they were rebels is beside the point. To condemn a citizen to cultural and political servitude to the status quo because that particular citizen happens to be a Government worker is a situation that can hardly be charged to Civil Service Regulations or to the principles of our Constitution. To fire a Government employe because he (or she) belongs to the Communist Party or to the Ku Klux Klan is one thing, but to fire employes because they merely belong to a union or distrust the Greek government is something else. Hitler used the same methods for the same reason: to protect the State—remember? AMERICAN.

Alexandria, Va.

Your editorial, "Loyalty and Logic", seemed rather a strained criticism of Commager's article in the last Harper's "Who is Loyal in America?" A timely and important warning of the threat to civil liberty in the U. S.

But the sentence of your editorial which shocked me is your acceptance as a matter of course, a status which prevails only in time of war. Only then is it proper to doubt and test the loyalty of citizens. You defend the President's loyalty test as something right and proper "in view of the relations now existing between the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics".

The press and the power politicians seem determined to keep up this clamor about communism to cover their silence about fascism, which is the real evil, determined to destroy Russia's economy. If there is war, the U. S. press must accept chief responsibility for it.

Inflation's Victims

By Malvina Lindsay

Where Prices Pinch

IN COLD GRAY type it is statistical and remote, this news that the retail food price index has reached a new high, or that grocery bills have increased 30 per cent in the last 12 months and are still rising. But there are places where it has more concrete meaning—though in widely different ways.

Mrs. Pinchpenny Genteel, an elderly widow living on a small legacy that once meant comfort without worry, now figures endlessly. How can she buy $1 a pound butter and meat, 93 cents a dozen eggs, the other food her frail body needs and pay her rent (and what if it is raised!), her medicine and doctor bills, other expenses incident to the high cost of old age, out of the small never-changing check that comes in the mail?

An old man, one of the many in large cities who manage to exist on small pensions, savings or relief payments by making every penny buy its utmost in food value, turns away gray faced from a sign in a popular priced cafeteria. Breakfast eggs are now 10 cents instead of 5!

THE SLIGHTLY peaked girl at the soda fountain starts to order a ham sandwich, then says, "No, make it lettuce." She remembers the new fall suit on which she has made a deposit at a store . . . Maybe she shouldn't have bought it—yet, she really needed it. One can't slip in looks and hold a job these days. She will simply have to cut her lunches back to 25 cents—somehow. Here lately they've been climbing to half a dollar!

The student veteran and his wife go over their accounts again in their trailer living room. No, they can't cut down on Junior's milk, though it certainly counts up. And he needs shoes, and so do they, though they can stretch their clothes another year. But grocery bills won't stretch. They can't do any more pinching, the food is drab enough already. There's nothing to do but go into the terminal leave money. And they had hoped to make it a nest egg.

The professor's family will keep on wearing old clothes. His wife and daughters will lower hemlines, but otherwise do without the "new look" the "new elegance." No more new books, no more concerts, plays. Magazine subscriptions must be canceled. The children must leave off movies. They won't accept invitations . . . entertaining must be curtailed. Even then there'll have to be more haddock and scalloped macaroni. Where on earth, they wonder, are those average Americans who are eating 154 pounds of meat a year?

THE WORKER with a $65-a-week pay check is astounded to find there's not enough money to pay the month's bills. How come? He thought he was getting a good salary. Back in 1939 he would have been on easy street. Of course they've been eating more and better meat, buying more milk for the children, more oranges, yes, and better clothes, a few more cigars, and paying on a new motor car and—well, living a little easier generally. But now—well this can't go on! His wife will have to cut some corners.

A well-upholstered man studies a hotel menu. What's this? Five dollars for a steak! That's what comes of shipping all our food to lazy foreigners who won't dig coal! And of letting Tom, Dick and Harry throw away their money on high-priced meat! Why don't they eat fish—it's a good food with lots of iodine!—or hamburger? Well, anyway, he's not going to be robbed. He'll take roast chicken—no, wait he really needs a good steak. There's this ticklish conference ahead . . . he needs to keep up his strength. But the way prices are rising—well, tonight he'll have a straight talk with the family.

Mrs. Livewell, comfortable matron of the "fry mine in butter" school, also is feeling the pinch. Yet she still boasts her husband won't let fish or the cheaper cuts of meat come in the house, and that her family has never been the kind that used butter substitutes. What's more, she won't have her refrigerator cluttered up with dabs of leftovers. She cooks profligately, unworried by the world's hunger. Yet of late the grocery bill has been upsetting to her husband, and she no longer proclaims she'll pay any price for meat so long as she can get it. It really begins to look as if she'll have to wait awhile for her new refrigerator.

"Immoral" Skirts

The Rev. A. Powell Davies should be commended for his forthright stand regarding present fashions for women.

Two things should be taken into consideration in judging clothing styles: Comfort and beauty. The new fashions, in our opinion, fail to measure up on either score. Then there is the matter of material wastage in a war-torn hungry world.

Our admiration for the courage of Dr. Davies is tempered when we consider that he stood in the pulpit in 90-degree heat in long woolen trousers, long-sleeved shirt with a close-fitting collar. Over this was a floor-length robe with what seemed to be a lined colored scarf. And was there a coat under the robe, Dr. Davies? G. T. L.

Washington.

Dr. Davies has evidently not informed himself about the amount of material needed to lengthen skirts, a very small percentage of which is wool. A few inches more will not affect the condition of the whole world. What will happen will be that hems will be let out and if that is not possible new dresses will be bought and the old dresses will be given away to needy persons, and more women will be covered. At the present prices of women's clothes seamstresses will be kept busy altering skirts, thus giving work to many not otherwise occupied. K. W. B.

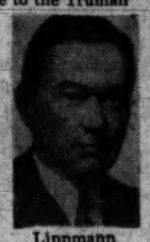
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War IX

WE MAY now examine a question which must be answered before the policy, which I contend is preferable to the Truman Doctrine, can be accepted with conviction. I have argued that we should concentrate our effort on the evacuation of Europe by the Red Army. What about the Communist parties which are also the instruments of Soviet power? If the Red Army withdrew behind the frontiers of the Soviet Union, the Communist parties would remain—to put it bluntly, as a Soviet fifth column. They will be assisted, we may take it, by Soviet agents and by Soviet funds and Soviet contraband weapons and by Soviet propaganda and by Soviet diplomacy.



Lippmann

That is true. There will still be the problem of communism. Nevertheless, the heart of our problem is, I contend, the presence of the Red Army in Europe. The Communist Party in any country is the fifth column. It is, however, only a fifth column. There are the other four columns, and they are the Red Army. The policy which I suggest is designed to separate the first four columns from the fifth, to divide the Red Army from the Red International. For the Soviet power is most formidable where they are able to work together, that is to say, where the Communist Party has the support and protection of the Red Army.

THERE ARE, as I write, no Communist states except within the zone of Russian military occupation. Outside the military boundary of the Soviet orbit those countries are most threatened with a Communist seizure of power into which the Red Army could most easily march. Within the Soviet zone it would be interesting to see what would happen if the occupying forces inside those countries or surrounding them were withdrawn. For it is one thing to resist a local dictatorship and quite another to resist the strongest land power on earth.

It is conceivable, though it has not yet happened, that a Communist Party might win an election, or that it might seize the authority of government though there was no Red Army to support it and protect it. But even if this happened, the position of the Communist Party would be incomparably less secure than if the Red Army were present to overawe the police and to suppress the resistance of the national army and of the national forces. In an unoccupied country the Communist fifth column would have to fight and win a civil war before its authority was established. In an occupied country the Red Army can prevent a civil war and drive the resistance underground and reduce it to a guerilla action.

I DO NOT think there is any doubt, therefore, that the evacuation of Europe by the Red Army would alter the situation decisively. There would then be in the internal affairs of the European countries no alien and irresistible military force actually deciding or threatening to decided the internal issues of power and authority. And once the Red Army had withdrawn to the frontiers of the Soviet Union, it could not easily return. For that would be an open act of aggression, an unmistakable violation of the treaty of settlement which would indubitably precipitate a general war.

THE NEXT question is whether the objective of obtaining the withdrawal of the Red Army is attainable. A certain answer to this question is, of course, impossible. We can only calculate the probabilities, and we can say that the objective I am contending for is concrete, substantial, intelligible to everyone, and a normal and universally accepted objective at the conclusion and settlement of a war.

We may begin, moreover, by noting that in all our disagreements with the Soviet government the Kremlin has always agreed that the purpose of these tedious negotiations is in the end to conclude treaties of peace with all the enemy states. Now a treaty of peace may call for the annexation of territory, it may call for a period of supervision and control until the enemy state has fulfilled certain demands and has met certain conditions. But if it is a treaty of peace, it must provide for an end to military occupation. The treaties which have been signed with Italy and with the satellite states are definite on this point. If and when treaties of peace are agreed to for Germany and Austria, they will have to contain definite stipulations for the withdrawal of the armies of occupation. In some form or other, at some time or other, no matter what supervision and control are imposed upon, what guarantees are exacted from, Germany, and exchanged among the Allies, these treaties of peace will fix a time when the Red Army, and of course the British, the French and the American armies also, can no longer, as a matter of legal right, remain in central and eastern Europe.

Therefore, in making the withdrawal of the armies the objective of our policy, we are seeking to accomplish a result which the Soviet government by the very act of negotiating peace treaties has agreed to in principle.

THIS IS something on which to work. For in our disagreements, which are deep and stubborn, there is a common commitment which no one has challenged. If there is agreement on the terms of the German and Austrian treaties, the withdrawal of the armies will follow. This is a wholly different kind of commitment from those which were made at Yalta and at Potsdam, and were then violated later. As to what is democracy and what is a free election and the like, it is possible to differ honestly and to differ dishonestly.

But an agreement to evacuate an army must either be carried out or violated. It is not a question for the dialecticians, the ideologists, the sophists and the casuists. It is not a matter which can be hidden behind an iron curtain. It is a matter of plain and quite obvious fact.

Off The Record

Vishinsky's Outburst

By Barnet Nover

The Rumble Of Armageddon

PARAPHRASING William James, Andrei Vishinsky's ferocious assault on the United States before the United Nations General Assembly can best be described as the unmoral equivalent of war.

NOVER

In the old days, language one tenth as violent as that employed by Vishinsky on that occasion would have caused the guns to go off by themselves. But that was the old days. We live in a very different world now.

Vishinsky was perfectly well aware, when he let go with all barrels at this country, that the United States has no intention of attacking the Soviet Union.

Had we had any such intention we would have done so before the Army had been demobilized, before the Air Force had been reduced to a shadow of its former self, and before Russia had been given time to begin ferreting out the secret of the atomic bomb.

VISHINSKY also knows that Russia is in no position to attack the United States. Not now, anyway. She needs time to recover from the last war.

Nonetheless, many of his listeners were shocked to the marrow by the unprecedented bluntness of his language. They heard in his shrieking periods the approaching thunder of Armageddon.

This was precisely the effect the Soviet representative wished to create. Every paragraph, every sentence, every syllable, of his outwardly hysterical speech was calculated to produce a maximum of consternation in the minds of those who heard him.

Vishinsky knows, as do his bosses in the Kremlin, that in the broken and bleeding world of today there is no greater fear than the fear of another war. They are determined, just as was Hitler, to capitalize that fear to the limit, to squeeze every ounce of advantage from it.

WHO CAN FORGET how even while plotting his aggressions, Hitler vented his rage against the "warmongers," at Roosevelt and Churchill and Benes and Eden and others who were calling attention to the aims and ambitions of Nazi Germany and urging that something be done to stop her?

Except for the fact that it was delivered in Russian, Vishinsky's speech was a carbon copy of Hitler's speeches. It was a bid for another Munich, for more appeasement. It said, in effect, that if peace is to be perpetuated there must be complete capitulation to the Kremlin.

IT IS BEING said that Vishinsky overshot the mark, that he was too violent to be effective, that he would have stood to gain twice as much if he had been half as vehement.

There is a good deal of wishful thinking in that belief. It ignores the problem that faced Vishinsky when he got up to speak, the world setting in which his words were uttered.

Vishinsky is a man utterly without intellectual or moral scruples of any kind. But he is no fool. He knew exactly what he was doing when he made his speech in the Assembly.

He knew that Russia had nothing to lose by it that she had not already lost, particularly the good will of the Western world. He acted on the military theory that the best defense is an attack and on the propagandist principle, so dearly beloved by Hitler and Goebbels, that a lie is believed when big enough and repeated often enough.

WITH HIS OPENING speech before the Assembly, Secretary of State Marshall had seized the initiative on behalf of the United States.

The Secretary had struck an extremely popular note with his espousal of the plan, long advocated by the smaller nations, to limit the veto power of the Big Five, a power which Russia has so persistently and flagrantly abused.

He had aroused the rapidly waning faith in the U. N. by his proposal to make the Assembly a year-round body, capable if not of acting at least of serving as an ever-present world forum. His speech made it clear that the United States had no intention of abandoning the U. N., but earnestly sought to put life into the organization.

THE LAST THING Russia wants is a strengthening of the U. N., a de-emphasis of the role of the Security Council, where her obstructionist tactics can be employed, and an increase in the prestige of the Assembly which is not hampered by the veto.

If Marshall succeeds in this aspect of his program as well as with respect to European rehabilitation, Russia's hopes of winning her objectives will suffer a mortal blow.

Those are big "ifs." Vishinsky's speech is a warning that the struggle for world order and recovery will not be uncontested. The fight is without gloves. We are certainly not going to win it by default.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

U. S. Passion For Security

ATHENS, GREECE.—This overgrown city of nearly two million people is almost invariably a shock to Americans who come to Athens for the first time to work with the aid mission. Nothing they have read or heard has quite prepared them for its thronging, noisy life or for the annoyances that get in the way of working and living in a strange new environment.

Childs

Take the telephone, for example. In the United States the telephone is an instrument of known usefulness that rarely fails. Here it is more than not an instrument of frustration and torture which produces more wrong numbers than right numbers.

Many Americans with the aid mission are living in the Hotel Accropole in one of the suburbs. At about 11 o'clock every night, a band starts to play in the opposite square, and at midnight a soprano begins to sing over a loudspeaker turned up to the highest pitch. She sings such choice selections as "Home on the Range" and "Don't Fence Me In"—in Greek, of course. This goes on until 2 a. m.

A strangling, all-pervasive red tape gets in the way of everything. Official police permission, stamped and sealed, is a prerequisite to almost any move that one makes. Partly, this is a result of the fear of a Communist revolution which besets many Athenians. Partly it is a familiar phenomenon in the Near East, where a government job is one of the few avenues of escape from the dead level of grinding poverty.

BUT BEFORE pointing to the bureaucratic mote in the Greek eye, Americans had better take notice of some of the flaws in our own organization. A major one is this business of the security checkup which is carried to such exaggerated lengths as to seriously hamper the work of the aid mission.

Here is an instance: When, reluctantly, Clinton S. Golden agreed to come to Greece as head of the labor division of the mission, it was on condition that he have a younger man as his assistant who should precede him to Athens. Golden, an elder statesman of the labor movement, with the trust of both the CIO and AFL, was cleared at once.

But D. Alan Strachan of the United Auto Workers, designated as his assistant, had a different experience. He was cleared by the FBI in three days. Then the Security Division of the State Department took over. They went around to the same people interviewed by the FBI, and in some cases actually tried to persuade them to change the stories they had originally told.

Golden, on the eve of his departure for Greece, got more and more angry. He knew Strachan as a conscientious and exceptionally well-informed trade unionist, strongly anti-Communist. Moreover, in the War Production Board during the war years, Strachan had had an important role which gave him access to highly confidential information.

MORE THAN six weeks went by without action. It finally took the intervention of Secretary of State Marshall himself to get Strachan cleared and on his way. Before this could happen, Golden was already in Athens and was facing alone such problems as a threatened strike of civil servants in the Athens government which would have gravely handicapped the mission's work.

Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, chief of the military side of the mission, has 26 officers. From this small staff he has had to detail one to run the post exchange, which sells American cigarettes, toothpaste and candy bars to Americans in the mission.

The reason Livesay had to spare an officer for this unimportant job is because the civilian he designated for the position is stuck somewhere in the security clearance process. And it is not, as the general points out, as though the man in charge of the P. X. would be likely to have access to confidential documents. What makes it more absurd is that Greeks are taken off the street to work as clerks in the exchange.

Educated Greeks know that we have at home a Red scare of our own. They politely hint at that fact when they are told that it might be well if they overcame their phobia about communism.

We can never do this job if we are to behave in such a childish way. The people of Greece have gone through dictatorship, war and revolution. The miracle is that their society has held together at all. Our fears and suspicions, as reflected in this passion for security, look far less rational than theirs.

Most Voters Believe Graft War Present in War Contracts

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 19.—When the Senate committee investigating World War II armament contracts renews hearings November 17 here are some things the members can learn from the public:

1. In overwhelming numbers American voters believe there was sufficient graft involved in the war contracts given some companies to justify a full-scale congressional investigation.

2. Aside from the question of graft, the same large proportion of voters have a suspicion that some profits were too large.

3. But, while feeling Congress should scrutinize the matters, the voters do not like the way the Senate War Investigating Committee conducted its hearings into Government contracts obtained by Howard Hughes for producing his flying boat and XF-11 photo reconnaissance plane.

A coast-to-coast cross-section of voters was asked:

Do you think there were any companies who made too much profit on their contracts with the Government during the war?

Yes	73%
No	7
No opinion	20

The same people were then asked:

Do you think the problem of graft (unfair profits) in war contracts was serious enough for Congress to carry on investigations?

Yes	68%
No	15
No opinion	17

The Hughes inquiry conducted before a subcommitee of the Senate war investigating body evidently was followed with intense interest by many Americans. Seventy-six per cent of voters interviewed said they had heard or read about the hearings under the chairmanship of Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.).

These informed people were asked:

What is your opinion of the Hughes' investigation?

Those with unfavorable opinions about the manner in which the Senators ran the affair outnumbered the favorable views by more than two to one. From the comments it is evident that the public sided with Mr. Hughes, on the basis of the hearings held so far. Presumably they will be backing him again, when he takes the stand two months from now.

An analysis of opinions unfavorable to the conduct of hearings:

Hearings were foolishness, farce, nothing to them	30%
Political move, politics	8
Hughes innocent, being made scapegoat	8
Hearings not properly conducted, failure	6
Hughes got best of it, made Congress look foolish	2
Critical of Senator Brewster	2

Views favorable to conduct of hearing:

Hearings good idea, good to know where money comes from	19%
Charges are true, Hughes wrong	6

Answers critical of hearings total 56 per cent, favorable, 25 per cent, miscellaneous responses 2 per cent, and no opinion, 20 per cent. The answers add to more than 100 per cent since some people gave more than one opinion.

No noticeable variations are found in opinions on this subject among various occupation groups and as between Democrats and Republicans.

Maryland Guard Sets Up Armory In Parish House

Oakland, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—A temporary armory has been established in a parish house here for an Oakland unit of the Maryland National Guard.

The official vestry of the Episcopal church has agreed to make its parish house available to the proposed unit temporarily.

Those interested in the project decided at a public meeting to form a combat engineer company to be part of the battalion made up of units from Prince Frederick, La Plata and Leonardtown.

The local American Legion post already has offered a site for a permanent armory, estimated to cost about $140,000. The Maryland Guard plans to spend between $2000 and $3000on the parish house to put it in shape for temporary use.

Stone Laying To Be Recalled

The fortieth anniversary of the foundation stone laying of the Washington Cathedral will be observed with impressive ceremonies September 28 at 11 a. m.

The stone, brought here from a field adjoining the Church of the Holy Nativity in Bethlehem, is embedded in a block of American granite in Bethlehem Chapel, and lies directly under the cathedral's high altar.

Principal speaker at the anniversary service will be Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes. He was for 15 years canon residentiary at the cathedral and prominent in District civic, social welfare and educational circles. He left the cathedral in 1939 to resume work upon his book, "History of Universities From Their Origin to the Present Time."

Religion in Action

St. Martin's Clubhouse Plays To 500 Neighbors Some Nights

Hundreds of folks in the Upper North Capitol Street area find wholesome diversion in St. Martin's Clubhouse.

This project of St. Martin's Catholic Church functions six nights weekly from 6:30 to 11 in quarters near North Capitol and T sts.

Miltenberger

"Members of the Teen-Agers and 18-30 clubs and the other organizations are honor-bound to conduct themselves with propriety. Their conduct is exemplary, says the Rev. Louis Miltenberger, acting pastor of St. Martin's and club director.

"We don't police them—they know there is a heavy penalty for infractions of the rules," says Father Miltenberger. "Some nights we have as many as 500 young folks here, with only four adults to supervise them. And we seldom have any trouble."

Father Miltenberger is enthusiastic about the club's character-building program.

"One fellow who used to drink quite a lot started to attend the club. He stopped drinking. Another fellow was cynical about religion. Without any pressure from the church, this cynic has become one of our most loyal members."

Anyone joining the various organizations using the clubhouse must pledge to share the responsibilities for the programs. He may be called upon to run the "coke" bar; help prepare a dinner, clean up the hall after a dance, or serve on a committee arranging a forum.

The Teen-Agers is a strictly Catholic group. Membership in the 18-30 Club is open to Catholic and non-Catholics. The clubhouse is also used by five Girl Scout troops; four troops of Boy Scouts and Cubs; the Mother's Club and the Men's Club. Clubhouse equipment includes a gymnasium, ping-pong tables, four pianos, a juke box, radio and a cozy lounge that is open at all times for reading. There are bowling, basketball and other teams.

One of Father Miltenberger's pet projects is a course on "Courtship and Marriage" that will soon resume its fall and winter sessions.

"This course is very essential in today's troubled times," commented Father Miltenberger. "Every day I am called upon to give personal counsel on such problems as family budgets, divorce, home guidance, boy and girl relationships and drinking."

Officers of the 18-30 Club are Henry F. Jones, president; Frank Rosomondo, vice president; Betty Lou Price, corresponding secretary; Joe Ellen Harrigan, recording secretary; Margaret Langworthy, treasurer, and Gene Perry, parlimentarian.

Yom Kippur to Be Observed As Climax to Penitence Period

Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement—holiest event in the Jewish calendar—will be observed from Tuesday at sundown to Wednesday at sundown.

A period of fasting and prayer, Yom Kippur climaxes the 10-days' period of penitence and reflection that began with Rosh Hashonah rites September 14 at sundown. Traditional feature of Yom Kippur is the chanting of the "Kol Nidre" (All Vows) prayer. There will also be Yiskor (memorial) services for departed Jews.

The Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation will hold its Yom Kippur services Tuesday at 8 p. m. and Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. in Constitution Hall. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld will officiate and preach.

Adas Israel Services

The Yom Kippur services of Adas Israel Congregation, 6th and I sts. nw., will be held Tuesday at 7 p. m. and Wednesday at 9 a. m. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz and Cantor Jacob Barkin will preside.

The Northeast Congregation will sponsor services Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. and Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. in the social hall, Sherwood Presbyterian Church, 22d and Jackson sts. ne.

Yom Kippur rites of the Arlington Jewish Center will begin at 7 p. m., and continue on Wednesday at 8:30 a. m., with memorial services Wednesday at 12 p. m. The services will take place in the Jones Building, 3150 Wilson Boulevard. Maj. Henry Tavel, Army chaplain, will officiate at Yom Kippur rites in the Silver Spring Armory, sponsored by the Silver Spring Lodge of B'nai B'rith and the Montgomery County Jewish Community.

Washington Lawyer and Wife Serve Mission for 60 Years

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A Washington lawyer and his wife, both in their 80's, next month will complete 60 years' voluntary service with the Central Union Mission, which marks its sixty-third birthday October 12 and 13.

"The Mission work has kept us young," observed white-haired Major and Mrs. William Hamby Ramsey, who remember the Mission's "Gospel Wagon" that rumbled over downtown streets in the 1880's.

MAJ. AND MRS. W. H. RAMSEY
"Mission work has kept us young"

"I came to Washington Saturday, October 1, 1887, to work as a clerk in the War Department," Major Ramsey recollected, and a friend told me about the Mission Chapel at 930 Pennsylvania ave. that operated the "Gospel Wagon." Sunday afternoon I walked to 13th and D sts. where men, women and children were standing on the "Gospel Wagon" singing Moody and Sanky hymns."

The Mission's second location was on the present site of the Justice Department at 9th st. and Pennsylvania ave. Major Ramsey recalled that in his years with the Justice Department he often stood outside and "could imagine he heard the sound of hymns coming from the Mission."

Major Ramsey, who followed law practice since his Government retirement in 1938 was elected to the Mission board in 1910, and has been board vice president since 1915. Mrs. Ramsey has been president of the Mission Woman's Auxiliary since 1906, excepting for a brief period before World War I.

ODDS AND ENDS

Thomas Johnston, former Secretary of State of Scotland, and onetime newspaper publisher, will address the Sunday Morning Breakfast Club tomorrow at 9:15 a. m. at the Central YMCA, 1736 G st. nw . . . The famous Maryland-born Dr. E. Stanley Jones, missionary to Indian, will speak at Constitution Hall October 6 at 8 p. m. on "A United Church of America" . . . The meeting will be sponsored by the Federation of Churches . . . The Rev. Charles W. Nelson, spiritual director of the Sodality of Union of Washington, is chairman of arrangements for a pilgrimage to the Shrine of Mother Cabrini on the weekend of October 18 in New York City.

Motorized 'Toys' of Teen-Agers Are Major Traffic Menace, Experts Agree at Annual Meeting of Va. Police Chiefs

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—Motor scooters, "whizzer bikes," and other similar small motorized vehicles operated by teen-agers who regard them as toys present one of the most serious traffic menaces facing the United States today, five experts agreed this morning at Hotel Roanoke.

Woodyard

The point was brought out during a panel discussion on current traffic problems at the twenty-second annual convention of the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police, which elected H. L. Woodyard, police chief of Arlington County, as president at its closing business session this morning.

John Hanna, major of the traffic division, Richmond police department, reported that he recently tested the braking efficiency of a number of motorized bicycles. He found out that the brakes function excellently at speeds of 25 miles an hour and less, but that they are slow in catching at greater speeds. He suggested that measures be taken to limit the speed of such vehicles by mechanical means to 25 miles an hour.

"About 85 per cent of these bikes are operated by irresponsible youngsters who have no knowledge of traffic rules," Hanna said.

(In Washington, motor scooters, as other mechanically operated vehicles, are required to meet specific licensing standards. About 1200 motor scooter operators hold licenses here.)

In other actions Clifton Stoneburner, traffic engineer, Arlington County, said that in recently erected housing developments in his area provisions for off-street parking had been set up by zoning ordinances. He added that the project has been very successful. He recommended zoning ordinances requiring off-street loading for large trucks.

In addition to Woodyard, the following association officers were named: Col. C. W. Woodson of Richmond, first vice president; H. C. Ferguson of Roanoke, second vice president; O. B. Dunn of Portsmouth, third vice president; J. M. Peach of Newport News, J. C. Garrett of Danville, J. W. Sover of Bristol and T. M. Parker of Hampton, executive committeemen.

Dr. Tinsley to Speak

Dr. C. J. Tinsley, Australian vice president of the Baptist World Alliance, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., and at 8 p. m. at Temple Baptist Church, 10th and N sts. nw.

Works to Beat Band

Vaughn's Reaping The Rewards, Too

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT THE TOWN: Hottest guy in town is Vaughn Monroe . . . He's putting on—with his band—the best stage show the Capitol has seen in months and broke Spike Jones' opening day record . . . Who says the public doesn't know a good thing when it sees it despite a flimsy picture? . . . Vaughn's also the most hard-working . . . Yesterday he did four shows and a store appearance, tossed in an extra show for the MPTOA-ATA convention at the Shoreham, went back to the Capitol and rehearsed till three ayam for his network broadcast tonight . . . This will be from the Capitol stage and means the patrons will get an extra show for their do-si-do. Today he does five shows as well as that CBS broadcast . . . T'other night we went with him to Eddie Gallaher's WTOP Moondial and watched him take a half hour effortlessly . . . Also heard him handle an interesting phone call from an unknown (to him) admirer who just wanted a date . . . He told us his wife's a wonder at understanding such problems of a bandleader who's a hero to the younger set . . . She and elder daughter Candy (aged 6) are in town this weekend for sightseeing before Candy starts school . . . They think at least some of our beautiful city will make an impression on their blonde lassie . . . Vaughn flies his own plane (a two-motor Cessna) and says it makes possible shorter separations from his Park ave. family . . . Betwen shows his hobby is reading and making miniature railroad trains . . . And talking, with uncommon intelligence, about movies and bandleaders' problems . . . If only we had a typescript of mutual agreements. For a Joe on the hit parade he's exceptionally relaxed and easy to talk to . . . He's also got a profile chipped straight from a classic statue . . . Success couldn't come to a gentler guy.

SIMON H. FABIAN said a mouthful . . . Speaking to the Shoreham's MPTOA-ATA convention, he voiced a customers' and exhibitors' beef: Why jack up the prices for a top-flight picture? . . . His audience, which represented some 11,000 theaters in this country, seemed ready to stand by him in an effort to force producers to drop this trick . . . The reason you're asked to pay more, say, for "Life With Father," isn't the fault of the theater owners . . . It's the way the producers force them to market the product . . . The exhibitors don't like it, and with yesterday's unanimous merger of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America and the American Theater Owners, you can look for a real battle on this issue . . . After all, they don't cut prices for a lemon and nobody knows that better than the theater owners.

STEVE COCHRAN, his old friends of the National Theater and Olney will be glad to know, is "getting along pretty well" . . . Steve, who lingered at death's door for days after a traffic accident in Hollywood, isn't out of the woods yet, but his son Joe reports he's holding his own . . . Steve's in the Los Angeles County General Hospital.

BERYL DAVIS, tall, dark, svelt and addicted to those horn-rimmed sunglasses that go whoop at the corners, is an English girl who sings so much like an American she has everyone confused . . . Even Beryl's confused . . . Says that American girls sing with a British accent . . . She's stopping the show at the Capitol this week . . . Spent the whole war in Britain singing to troops and has met lots of those Yanks here in the States . . . Though she's the heroine of a New Yorker yarn, bossman (for the week) Vaughn Monroe won't let her walk alone in Washington streets after dark . . . Which, from the front pages, isn't a bad idea . . . Beryl comes by bandsinging honestly . . . Her dad's Harry Davis, another entertainer GIs may remember from their war years.

RUSSELL BIRDWELL, one of the most publicized publicity men in the country, is the chap kings and potentates seem to call in when All Save Honor Is Lost . . . Proud of the 30 pounds he shed by dieting, Russ is now almost wiry and dresses with an un-Beverly Hills conservatism . . . The Bird attributes his space-grabbing to linking up his clients with current events . . . Like the topsy-turvy, Alice-in-Wonderland day here this week when Charlie Chaplin's "Monsieur Verdoux" was scratched by the Capitol because the dates coincided with a possible Chaplin summons to the Un-American Activities Committee on the Hill . . . The Bird worked fast to get other showcases and grinned about his ads, which'll read, "The Picture That Couldn't Be Stopped" . . . Watching that story take shape made us think of George Orwell's Wonderful satire, "Animal Farm."

VARIETY CLUBBERS will be scarce in these parts tomorrow . . . They'll be over in Baltimore for the Redskins-Green Bay Packers game, which is sponsored by the Variety Clubs of the two cities for the Boys Clubs . . . Cochairmen Carter T. Barron and Sam A. Galanty of the ways and means committee are working with Chief Barker Nathan D. Golden to insure a big District delegation . . . Sunday in the Washington theaters? . . . Business as usual!

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe collects some data on the world's 83,017 movie theaters.

BLONDES PREFERRED: Three out of five recent Warner contract winners were of the type Anita Loos claims gentlemen prefer, Denver's Barbara Bates, Dodge City's Lila Leeds and Austin's Kyle MacDonnell. They'll be along, respectively, in "Always Together," "Mary Hagen" and "Romance in High C"

Hedda Hopper

Merle's Jaw Isn't Wired, So She Chats About Wally

Hollywood, Sept. 19.—Merle Oberon's injured jaw hasn't been wired up, as reported; and she'll be able to return to work on "Berlin Express" within a week. An X-ray revealed only a small fracture. Merle tells me that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Windsor have bought a beautiful home in Versailles, where they'll stay next summer; and she wouldn't be at all surprised if they came to Hollywood next winter. In Cannes, France, it was Mrs. Windsor who raved over Merle's emerald necklace, and not the other way around.

The Duchess of Windsor

Elsa Maxwell, who usually praises our players to the skies, did a reverse on Rita Hayworth in her column. She tells of Rita's promising to attend a charity bazaar in Paris then failing to appear after receiving a great deal of publicity on it. She also accepted an invitation to be guest star at the banquet given by Regent Prince Charles (brother of King Leopold—in exile) at the Brussels film festival and at a luncheon the following day. But the day before the dinner, it was learned that Rita had chosen to linger in Switzerland; and Marlene Dietrich had to be invited to fill her spot at the last minute. Marlene accepted and became the reigning queen of Brussels. This autumn she will return to that city to accept the highest decoration the Belgians can offer. When will our stars learn that keeping their appointments is important not only to their careers but also to their function as good will ambassadors for our country?

Anita Didn't Loos

That suit Anita Loos had pending against Milton Speer over the writing of "White Night" has been settled out of court. Anita got quite a sum of money . . . Janis Carter gets one of the costarring roles in "Let's Fall in Love," which has Jeffrey Lynn and Janet Blair in the other two top spots . . . Don't be surprised if Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray are teamed again in "Midnight Lace." Claudette is already set, and Universal-International is dickering with MacMurray. "The Egg and I," in which those two costarred, has turned out to be the biggest grosser at the box office that studio ever had . . . Jimmy Mitchell of "Brigadoon" fame, will be the star of Mike Surtiz's next picture. He's a California boy who went to college with Alexis Smith and Donna Reed and starred in the school plays. After graduation, he took up classical dancing and signed a six months' contract with Metro, where he didn't get a break. His second New York engagement, "Brigadoon," made a star of him. Now Broadway loses him to Curtiz, who has placed him under a long-term contract.

Taylor Maid for Elizabeth

Elizabeth Taylor feted at Harvard by the "Advocate." Twelve hundred fifty freshmen will give her a party; and 3000 will attend a screening of Elizabeth's new picture, "Cynthia" . . . Richard Conte, after a holdout, has agreed to do "Northside 777"; so Twentieth Century has taken him off suspension. Henry Hathaway is now in New York interviewing actors from stage and radio to complete the cast of the picture, which will be shot largely in Chicago . . . Catherine McLeod is asking Republic's permission for her to move to San Francisco, so she can be with her husband, Bill Gerds, who is in medical school there . . . Fay Holden left this week to visit her mother in North Wales. She'll be back here October 25. This is the first time that "Andy Hardy's" ma has seen her real mother in 20 years.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Full Cabinet Gathers For Truman's Return

By Drew Pearson

The full Truman Cabinet is converging on Washington for the first time in many weeks to be on hand when the President returns to face some of the most important problems of his entire Administration.

Anderson

Secretary of State Marshall will return briefly from New York; Secretary of Agriculture Anderson will fly in from New Mexico; even Postmaster General Hannegan, long absent because of illness, will be on deck.

Biggest problems to be decided are:

1. Shall a special session of Congress be called to back up the Marshall Plan?

2. Will rationing and price control be necessary to feed Europe?

When the President goes the rounds of his Cabinet, first to be called on will be the man on his immediate right—the Secretary of State. Marshall's views already have been cabled to Truman in Brazil, are well known to the public. He believes Europe is lost to us unless a special session of Congress votes immediate funds and food.

But the eighth man Truman will call on, as he makes the Cabinet's round, will give him some stimulating ideas along different lines. He is Secretary of Agriculture Anderson who is just as persuasive at Cabinet meetings as he once was as an insurance man.

Anderson, a New Mexico cattle rancher, whose job it is to stand up for the American farmer, has collected significant figures showing what the American farmer already has done for Europe. In August, he will probably tell Cabinet colleagues, U. S. farmers shipped Europe the stupendous total of 1,800,000 tons of wheat as against 400,000 tons in the same month last year.

Minus an Ambassador

Sometimes men influence history; sometimes history influences men. Sometimes also the death of a man leaves a gap which has its repercussion on history for months or years to follow.

One such case was the death last spring of O. Max Gardner on the morning he was to sail for London to become Ambassador to England.

If Max Gardner had been able to continue that journey and had served as friendly counselor and connecting link between the United States and England, unquestionably we would have avoided much of the current friction and misunderstanding between the two countries. Gardner, a homespun philosopher, who knew the fiber of the American people as few others, would have advised the Attlee government on how to avoid rubbing American public opinion the wrong way; would have been a great interpreter of British problems to the USA.

Few people could have taken his place, and it is probable that historians will evaluate Max Gardner's death as the most serious blow Anglo-American friendship has suffered in a decade.

Note—The British Embassy in Washington, more high-hat than the labor government in London, never really understood Max Gardner's homespun qualities, even failed to send a representative to his funeral in North Carolina. And at a dinner given by Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer for President Truman and Chief Justice Vinson, Lord Inverchapel remarked to Mrs. Gardner: "I am so glad to see you among this kind of people." Apparently he thought the Gardners went out with too many ordinary folks.

Jeeps Converted To 'Rubbernecks'

Hollywood.—With major studios now enforcing a strict ban against visitors, best way for tourists to see how movies are made is to visit a film location away from the studio.

In faraway Oregon a war veteran who now is a University of Oregon student enjoys a profitable business conducting jeep tours to the location for RKO Radio's "Rachel," starring Loretta Young, William Holden and Robert Mitchum.

Visitors aren't permitted in the set but they get close enough to see what is going on. And they seem to be satisfied, for they filch the "No Visitors Allowed" signs as souvenirs and the tour conductor is satisfied with his average of $50 per day.

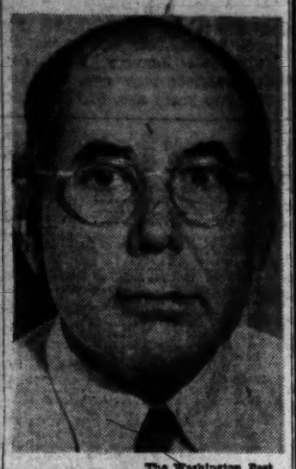
Slain Woman's Husband Arrives



The Washington Post

PAUL JOHNSON, husband of the slain Mrs. Adele G. Johnson, arrived in Washington yesterday from New York City, where he is employed

Slaying Shocks Neighborhood

Monday at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw., with burial in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

Deputy Coroner Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, following yesterday's autopsy, said Mrs. Johnson died almost instantly when the bullet entered her right lung, severed the aorta, main artery from the heart, and lodged in the left lung. He withheld issuance of a death certificate pending further police investigation.

The victim's husband said last night that the roomers there and in adjoining rooming houses were still fearful, and angry over the number of petty crimes that have gone on in the neighborhood.

"My wife got her gun (a 38-caliber pistol) because there were so many prowlers around here," Johnson declared. She told me at least three radios had been stolen from the girls' rooms in the past three months.

"She used to have a lot of trouble with prowlers climbing up the rear fire escape, but that stopped when she put a burglar alarm on it."

Many of the girl roomers, Government workers, stayed up most of the night after the 10:30 p. m. shooting, they said. And there was talk yesterday of barricading their doors when they went to bed. Many of the doors have no locks, since the front door can only be opened by key.

Sister Describes Shooting

Mrs. Mary Morrow, 52, a sister of the slain woman, told detectives she saw the white shirt of the prowler as he passed her basement window at the rooming house. She notified her sister, in an adjoining room, and the two went to the rear basement door.

"Stand still. I have a gun and I'll shoot," Mrs. Johnson commanded of the stranger, who was standing in the areaway well.

"He fired, without saying a word," said Mrs. Morrow.

Neighbors reported seeing him run up 18th st. towards S st. nw., pocketing his gun as he ran under the streetlight.

Back at the scene, Mrs. Johnson lay crumpled inside the corridor behind the latched screen door. Three bullet holes, close together, showed in the screening. Behind and below them lay Mrs. Johnson, blood staining her blue pajamas.

Neighbors agreed they heard one shot, followed closely by two more in quick succession. The bullets from Mrs. Johnson's gun flew high, into a wooden fence beyond the basement areaway. They wouldn't have come close to anyone standing more than three feet beyond the screen door.

Cab Driver Released

Police threw a cordon of patrolmen around the neighborhood. But the only suspect picked up, a cab driver cruising the neighborhood, was released after lengthy questioning.

The killing of the kindly, plump, businesslike landlady shocked the neighborhood and confirmed the fears of those who have long protested over the neighborhood's sneak thieves, prowlers and peeping Toms.

Only Wednesday, Miss Willie Armstead, maid for Mrs. Garfield Swift, reported that her life's savings of $4640 had been stolen from a trunk in the basement of the adjoining home, at 1730 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Mrs. Johnson moved to Washington a year ago to lease and operate the rooming house. She also served as a switchboard operator at Club Mason, adjoining rooming house for G-Girls, at 1726 New Hampshire ave. nw. Before coming here she operated a rooming house at Havre de Grace.

Besides her husband and sister, she leaves a son, Paul, jr., Veterans Administration employe, of Columbus, Ohio; a daughter, Mrs. Kathlyn Burroughs; a granddaughter, Kathlyn Adele Burroughs, age 2, both of Potomac, Md., and another sister, Mrs. J. K. Brown of Bristol, Tenn.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washingtonians bought $45,515,562 in Series E Savings Bonds during the first eight months this year and cashed in $37,758,034 worth.

LYNCH

With the exception of June, every month so far this year has shown a substantial excess of purchases over redemptions, according to the District of Columbia Savings Bond Division, Treasury Department. June showed new purchases of $5,455,914 and cash-ins of $5,457,016.

Commenting on the local record, Hugh Lynch, director of the District of Columbia Division, said:

"It is interesting to note that sales of Series E Bonds here have, on the average, through the last 20 months, been one million dollars in excess of redemptions of A to E bonds. Series C Bonds have been maturing during 1947 and, therefore, a measurable amount of maturity redemptions are included.

"The record of the District of Columbia, both in sales of Series E Bonds and excess of sales over redemptions, continues to be in the forefront among the Nation's sales areas, which are the 48 states and the Territories. Local sales continue well above the District's proportion of national sales based on population, per cent of income, etc . . ."

Nationally, it was reported by the Treasury Department, in January, February and March of this year more bonds were bought than were cashed in. But the tide has been running the other way ever since. Preliminary figures for the first half of September show redemptions of 169 million dollars, against purchases of 145 million.

For the past 20 months, District of Columbia figures on Series E purchases and Series A-E redemptions compared as follows:

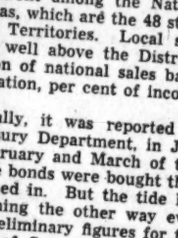
AD WOMEN TO MEET: Vergil D. Reed will address the Women's Advertising Club of Washington at a luncheon meeting Wednesday in Hotel Washington. His topic will be "Trends and Currents in Distribution." The session will be open to the public. Dr. Reed, associate director of research for the advertising firm of J. Walter Thompson Co., formerly was assistant director of the Census from 1936 to 1942. Later he was appointed chief, general statistics staff, War Production Board. Until the first of this year, he also served as consultant to the House Special Committee on Postwar Economic Policy and Planning.



Dr. Reed

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Cotton futures moved over a wide range today, closing 55 cents a bale lower to 10 cents higher. At times the market was up 62 a bale, but at that level prices encountered hedging and profit-taking.

Considerable nervousness was injected into the market by the hurricane which was sweeping the Gulf of Mexico. Predictions that the storm would reach as far as southern Arkansas led to fears that considerable damage would be done to cotton in that territory. While price changes were broad today, the trading volume was small.

Despite the fact that the hurricane was ravaging the South, dealers reported that considerable amount of selling in cotton futures came from that section of the country.

The New Orleans Cotton Exchange, owing to the state of emergency that existed in that territory, closed the market until further notice. Chicago board of directors, acting in sympathy, also closed the cotton futures market.

Power Boats Race in Regatta Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

SEATTLE, WASH., Sept. 19.—Seventy-year old Pop Warner stood up before the Northern California Football Writers Association and entered a strong dissent to the vogue for the T-formation. In effect, he said, "It's old stuff, and not so good."

POVICH

The old Carlisle Indian coach, who later took Stanford to football fame, stanchly defended his pet double-wing system, and said of the T: "Nothing new about it. Actually, it was the first formation used in football. Back when I started coaching, all the teams used it with a quarterback taking the ball behind the center. We didn't have just one man in motion. In those days it was permissible to send all the backs in motion. We found something better in the double wing and the T was junked as ineffective."

Coaches have been swept away by the new popularity for the T-formation, said Warner, and it's chiefly because of a lack of imagination. In these days, he said, it's the path of least resistance to use the T. He doesn't agree that they play better football today than they did in the era of the single wing or double wing or the Rockne shift and box formations of the 1920s and 30s.

TEN YEARS AGO the Nation's college teams could be catalogued under two headings—those who used the single wing that was a derivation of Warner's double wing and those who employed the Rockne box formation, perhaps with the Notre Dame shift. The country's coaches were cleft almost down the middle in their choice of the two systems.

Going into the 1940s, the Rockne system was perhaps the most popular. That is accounted for by the fact that Notre Dame graduated so many football players into coaches' ranks—Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley, Harry Stuhldreher, Noble Kizer, Harry Mehre, Adam Walsh, Joe Bach and Joe Backman, to mention only a few. They carried the Rockne gospel throughout the land and it was catching up with Warner football.

The reformation came with the success of the Chicago Bears on the pro league, and Clark Shaughnessy at Stanford. Until Shaughnessy came along at Stanford, the T-formation was supposed to be the exclusive property of the Bears who had the postgraduate talent and the precision to make it work. But Shaughnessy exploded that theory by demonstrating at Stanford in 1940 that given a deft quarterback like Frankie Albert to handle the ball, a college team could also make it go.

AND SO THE T spread to the college circuit. The overwhelming majority of colleges now have adopted it, though some die-hard coaches hew to the single wing with success, like Michigan and Penn. Even Notre Dame took the radical step of junking the Rockne box and shift in favor of Frank Leahy's T-formation that had worked so well for him at Boston College.

Notre Dame alumni at first recoiled at the idea of junking the Rockne style that had lifted the Irish to such transcendant fame. Elmer Layden, Leahy's predecessor, was applauded when, vetoing the growing fad for the T, he stuck to the Rockne box with the declaration, "What was good enough for Rock is good enough for me." But with the coming of Leahy and such quarterbacks as Angelo Bertelli and Johnny Lujack, the Irish became confirmed T-formation operators.

Tom Hamilton coaches the T at the Naval Academy but he doesn't quits proclaim that it's the only successful system. Without much urging, Hamilton would return to the single-wing formation of his undergraduate days if he had the material, which means big, strong lads who could power the single-wing plays that were so successful in his day.

OSTENSIBLY, HAMILTON used the T in the near upset against unbeaten Army last fall, but actually he embroidered it with some very un-T-like-formations. Navy backs were getting the ball on a direct pass through the quarterback's legs on occasion and they played it without the man in motion. Army was thoroughly discombooberated in the last half by Hamilton's formations that scarcely resembled the T.

With the Army-Navy game coming up last season, Hamilton was delighted to hear of the scoreless tie between Army and Notre Dame. "Army will have to score touchdowns when they meet us because we are going to score with variations of the T," he said. Navy, you remember, did score three touchdowns which weren't quite enough.

The T apparently has its drawbacks. The other day in Los Angeles, Coach Dud De Groot of the Dons acknowledged that he couldn't use Glen Dobbs, perhaps the best quarterback in the land, at quarterback. Dobbs, who has been playing the single wing, is too big to play behind the center in the T, says DeGroot. Steve Owen and Ray Flaherty, always considered two of the brighter minds among the pro football coaches, thus far haven't been tempted to shift from the single wing to the T-formation.

But Lou Little, the Columbia coach, perhaps put it best when he recently discussed systems. "The best system," said Little, "is the human system. Give me the big, strong, fast, smart boys and I'll win with any system."

Penn State Faces Cougars As 1947 Grid Season Opens

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Six major grid clashes open the 1947 football season today with each of them expected to have a bearing on the sectional or national rankings of the teams involved.

Penn State, regarded as one of the stronger teams in the East, takes on an experienced Washington State eleven which may be a "dark horse" in the Pacific Coast Conference race.

Kentucky, trying to build prestige in the Southeastern Conference, meets Mississippi, which features a passing combination of Charles Conerly and Barney Poole, former West Point end, and a new coach, Johnny Vaught.

Kansas, Big Six Conference favorite, may find Texas Christian a tough one although the Horned Frogs aren't rated too highly in the Southwest Conference. The Oklahoma Aggies, turned down in their bid for Bib Six membership, may be strong enough to take it out on Kansas State, a member of that circuit.

Less important in the general picture but stil lgames of considerable interest are Villanova vs. King's Point, Clemson vs. Presbyterian, Richmond vs. Randolph-Macon, South Carolina vs. Newberry, and Davidson vs. Elon.

Nats Get Off Easy, Wind Halts Game

Boston, Sept. 19.—Perhaps it was as well that an old-fashioned New England nor'wester blew in over Fenway Park this afternoon.

It came in just before game time which was held up 25 minutes. Shortly after the game was started under difficult conditions, the Red Sox scored twice, but all in vain. It became necessary to hald play as the last of the third was about to start and the game was called after a 35-minute wait.

Two games will be played tomorrow, if possible. Mickey Haefner was the Nats' pitcher today and he may go again tomorrow. If he doesn't go, Bill Kennedy will be called on for one game with Early Wynn in the other. They'll have Denny Galehouse and Southpaw Earl Johnson against them.

Nats Held by Rookie

The Nats played about as usual in the two and one-half inning game today.

Charles (Chuck) Stobbs, 18-year-old southpaw from Norfolk, Va., pitched three flawless innings against the Nats.

Stobbs got ahit in the second inning, his only time at bat.

An all sports star at Granby High in Norfolk, Stobbs was signed by the Red Sox and sent to their farm team at Lynn, Mass., in the New England League at the start of the current season. He won nine and lost two for the Lynn Red Sox.

Bosox Wanted to Play

The game today would not have been started at all if it hadn't been for the fact that Boston, Detroit, and Cleveland are in a battle for second place. The Red Sox are present incumbents, one game ahead of Detroit and a game and a half ahead of Cleveland.

Not wishing to have it said the Sox were ducking the issue or not giving the others a fair chance, Manager Joe Cronin phoned League President Will Harridge before today's game, explained weather conditions and asked for his permission for a postponement. Harridge advised it would be best to play if it were possible, thus the start.

The Nats are here for three games, single games having also been listed for Saturday and Sunday. If the twin bill isn't possible Saturday, it will be tried Sunday and if they aren't played, the remaining games games will be transferred to the Capital where the Red Sox are to play next weekend.

Jefferson Ties G. W. 6-6

George Washington High School and Thomas Jefferson of Richmond, Va., fought to a 6-6 deadlock last night in the opening game of the Virginia Class A conference football season before 9000 fans at George Washington Stadium, Alexandria.

With George Washington leading by virtue of a second-period score, 6-0, Bill Kohler of Thomas Jefferson took a G. W. punt and ran 40 yards for a touchdown to tie the score at 6-6 with only three minutes remaining in the game. The conversion failed.

George Washington tallied its touchdown as Bill Hannah climaxed an 80-yard drive with a 14-yard gallop around left end. The try for point was blocked.

Jefferson threatened several other times but on several occasions fumbles deep in G. W. territory halted scoring drives.

Skins Given Hilarious Welcome

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

JUST AS THOUGH they'd mopped up everything in sight on their exhibition tour from the West Coast, the Washington Redskins were given the palm branch and fatted calf treatment yesterday in their official welcome home.

More than 700 members of the sponsoring Touchdown Club, officials and plain football fans packed the Statler Hotel Presidential Roome to meet the city's National Football Leagu squad.

The mob, participating in the Touchdown Club's first of a series of monthly "expanded" luncheons, stayed for almost three hours, which gives you an idea of the kind of affair it was.

Besides food and the inevitable tablecloth quarterbacking, the crowd was introduced to individual players by Master of Ceremonies Jim Gibons, of WMAL, heard a welcome address by "Dutch" Bergman of WRC, roared in appreciation of the Irish songs of Morton Downey, participated in a football quiz and saw motion pictures of last year's Army-Navy football game.

Quiz Brings House Down

The quiz brought down the house. Redskin Owner George Marshall, put on the spot by Gibbons, answered guests' questions relayed through The Washington Post Sports Editor Bus Ham. His humor and clarity had fans forgettifig the 'Skins have lost two of their three exhibitions and are a rank underdog in tomorrow's final preseason outing against the Green Bay Packers in Baltimore.

Samples of the questions and Marshall's retorts, after a hilarious verbal skirmish with Ham:

Q. What is the Redskins' major problem this year?

A. The new men, and there are plenty of them. Marshall expressed a firm hope the rookies will learn "What it means to be a Redskin."

Q. How bad is the rib injury which will keep Sammy Baugh out of the Packer game? This was asked by Ralph Pittman, a Touchdowner and former Baylor University star.

A. No worse than Pittman's trick knee, injured some 35 years ago. Baugh is being held out of exhibitions merely to avoid taking chances.

Q. Who will take the place of Steve Bagruas as the Redskins' ace runner?

A. Let's leave sex out of this.

Q. Is it true that the Chicago Cardinals are "in", considering their potent material?

A. Yes, they've already accepted the championship cup. Theri only trouble will come in winning the Western Division title.

Q. Is Bill Dudley going to have a big season with the Detroit Lions? This was asked by Sportscaster Bill Brundige.

A. If Brundige has as good a season broadcasting the Lions' games as Dudley has playing with them, he (Brundige) should be terrific.

AFTER THE LAST olive was devoured, the Redskins repaired to Catholic University's stadium for a short workout in which three players, besides Baugh, were found unable to see action against the Packers.

Halfbacks Tom Farmer and Jim Hefti and Tackle Ernie Williamson will sit out the game in order to be ready for next Sunday's league opener against the Eagles in Philadelphia. Williamson's foot, strangely enough, was injured when stepped on by a dining room waiter in Chicago, shorly before the 28-7 pasting by the Chicago Bears.

Very doubtful performers were Ki Aldrich and Gaurd Bill Ward, while on the cheerful side was the revelation that Fullback Sal Rosato and Quarterback George Wilde may get into their first game of the season.

Washington-Lee Bowls Over Western for 2d in Row, 21-7

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The Washington-Lee Little Generals of Arlington won their second straight victory of the infant 1947 football season as they defeated Western High's Red Raiders, 21-7, before 3500 fans at W.-L. Stadium yesterday.

It was a disappointing debut for a Western team that wasn't given a chance of winning before the game, but put up a whale of a battle before losing.

The game was the first betwen the two schools since the District and Arlington public schools broke relations three years ago because of spectator fights.

The crowds were orderly yesterday, and were treated to the sight of a Western team, the underdog by four touchdowns, throw the bigger Little Generals back for a period and a half before falling victim to the W.-L. aerial attack.

The real heroes of the game were the seven men who guarded the Western front line. Stacked up against the heavier, more experienced Washington-Lee linemen the Red Raider line stopped the Generals' running attack cold.

It was heartbreaking for the Western line to seeWashington-Lee strike first in the second period on a 14-yard pass from Dickie Lewis to Harry Gladdin.

Only a few minutes before, the Western line had stalled a furious 89 yard drive by W.-L. on the Red Raider one yard line. Four times the Generals had thrown their hard driving backs, Dickie Lewis and Monk Carney against the Red Raider line, but they didn't gain a foot.

Western's George Holmes punted to W.-L.'s 35 where Biff Johnson returned the ball to the 14. With the Western line alerted for another assault, Lewistook to the air. He found Gladdin in the clear between DonStrain and Jack Leadbetter, and hit his mark in the end zone.

Lee Taylor, Washington-Lee's center, set up the second General touchdown when he intercepted Strain's pass on the Western 44. On the next play, Carney faded back and uncorked a beautiful spiral pass to Jack McGill 40 yards away, and five yards from the nearest Western defender.

The Raiders averted a shutout in the last quarter on a 29-yard punt that was set in motion by a pass interception and a sensational 46-yard runback by reserve Halfback Jim O'Leary. After George Holmes and Dale Summerbell had picked up a first down on the 16, Norman Wacker knifed insided right tackle to race into the end zone. Strain converted.

Ott Quits As Player

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Mel Ott, who joined the New York Giants as a skinny high school kid 22 years ago and became the NationalLeague's all-time home-run king during his rise to the rank of manager, announced his retirement as a player today.

Ott will continue to manage the Giants, but entirely from the bench.

His only appearances this year were as a pinch hitter on three occasions. He failed to get a hit each time.

Twenty-two years ago—when he was 16—Ott reported to the Giants on the recommendation of a friend of John McGraw. He played with the Giants under McGraw, then under Bill Terry, and was named manager at the end of the 1941 season.

As a player, Ott served on three pennant-winning teams and set eight Major National League records in addition to a flock of minor ones.

Frank Akins Joins Norfolk Shamrocks

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—Frank Akins, the Washington Redskins' leading ground gainer in 1945, will join the ranks of the Norfolk Shamrocks of the Dixie Pro Football League tonight, Harry Howren, Shamrock owner announced today.

Howren said that the 235-pound fullback, who was hampered all last season by a knee injury suffered in the Shamrock-Redskin exhibition at Foreman Field, had been traded to the Boston club this season and had practiced there before returning to Washington.

President's Cup Goes to Winner of 2-Day Event

The President's Cup Regatta, which was founded back in 1926 by the late President Coolidge will be unfolded today and tomorrow in the Georgetown Channel off Hains Point, with thousands of persons expected to view the races.

Starting at 11:30 a. m. with the Midget Class Outboards, the Regatta races on today's card will include Class A, B, C and F out outboard open events, the 91 cubic inch, 135, 225's, a ladies' free-for-all, and will lead up to the first of the qualifying heats for the President's Cup classic at 4:40 p. m.

Chief interest will be centered on the battle for the President's Cup, won last year by Albin Fallon's Miss Great Lakes, with California's Danny Foster, the ex-Army Air Forces pilot, at the helm.

8 or 10 Will Start

Regatta headquarters in the Willard Hotel said yesterday that the starting lineup for the big race would find either eight or ten starters jockeying into position.

Foster was back in town yesterday, but in a different boat. The smiling Irishman lost little time carting Miss Peps V, the Allison-powered craft owned by the Dossin Brothers of Detroit, to the Naval Air Station, where the pits are located and from which point the boats will be launched.

Miss Peps, winner of the Gold Cup at Jamaica Bay and the National Sweepstakes at Red Bank, N. J., will be shooting for the first powerboat "grand slam" in history, and will rule a favorite.

With Guy Lombardo's Tempo VI out of the race, Fallon invited Lombardo to drive Miss Great Lakes, and Lombardo, who arrived yesterday fresh and confident, said he was looking forward to the opportunity. He won the final heat of the Silver Cup at Detroit, although Herb Mendelson's Notre Dame, with Danny Arena at the throttle, turned up the winner.

Both Miss Great Lakes and Notre Dame were at the Nash Marine Service yesterday. The owner will serve as Lombardo's mechanic, just as he did for Foster last year.

"Miss Great Lakes has its third new motor since I bought it from Arena last year," Fallon said. "She should click."

Mendelson will be shooting for his fourth President's Cup triumph.

One boat was scratched yesterday, Ernest Wilson's Miss Canada III, 1939 champion. Others entered are Jack Schaefer's Hot Potato and Cchafer's Special, Bill Cantrell's Why Worry, Lou Fageol's So Long, Tom and How-

AT MARLBORO:

DEAR FOLKS: John Manfuso and John Foster of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association returned from the Wheeling track where they obtained a raise of $500 daily in purse money for the horsemen. Remember the horse, Don't Delay, that figured in the "Ringer case"? He showed up recently at the York Fair and after a protest his entry was refused. However, I'm told the animal has been winning at "outlaw" fairs under another name. Jim Mason, the assistant prosecutor at Charles Town, has gone to New York to arrange for the transfer of Pete Del Pozzo, charged with attempting a bribe at the West Virginia track, who is now being held in Gotham. Eddie Smith, former jockey, arrvied here. I asked him if he was going to ride or train horses. He replied, "I'm so disgusted right now I think I will write a book." BILL

Bobby Posts Nine Birdies In 28 Holes

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Bobby Brownell, 28-year-old Chevy Chase insurance salesman, won the District amateur golf championship by handing Maury Nee, of Columbia, a decisive 9 and 8 defeat in the 36-hole final yesterday at the Woodmont Country Club.

This was the third victory in this event and the second in a row for the blond Brownell who won his first District amateur title in 1936 at the age of 17 and triumphed again last year.

With a three-up lead at the end of the first 18 holes, which he negotiated in 71 strokes to Nee's 74, Brownell set a blistering pace on the first nine of the afternoon round.

Shoots Nine Birdies

After halving the first hole, Brownell won the second, third, fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth holes to go nine up as they started the incoming nine. Both parred the tenth with fours and the match came to a close at that point with Brownell 9 up with eight holes to play.

To illustrate what Nee had to contend with: Brownell shot nine birdies, 12 pars and only seven bogeys in the 28 holes he played; he dropped two 25-foot putts, two 20-footers, one 15-footer, one 8-footer and four 5-footers.

After a 38 on the first nine holes of the morning round, Brownell's next 18 holes were played in 65, or 4 under par.

Nee's Short Game Weakness

Nee, a 32-year-old furniture company executive and part-owner of the Baltimore Colts, had accomplished one of the golfing feats of the local season by reaching the final round of the tournament in his first competitive venture of the year.

Against the cool, precision shotmaking of Brownell, Nee's game, especially on chip shots and putts, failed to sustain him and as the match progressed he was in trouble continually.

When Nee managed to reach the green even with Brownell, he was not able to match the phenomenal putting of the winner, who tapped in any putt shorter than 5 feet with casual abandon.

Batter Makes Wrong 'Bass' With Foul Tip

San Francisco, Sept 19 (AP).—Catcher Will Leonard of San Francisco fouled off a pitch in the sixth inning of last night's Pacific Coast League game with Sacramento—and the ball fell into the bass horn in the bandstand.

It didn't disturb the bass horn player—not much anyway. He just extracted the ball and gave out with a chorus of "Casey Would Waltz With the Strawberry Blonde and the Band Played On."

Devitt Routs Falls Church

Devitt Prep unleased a torrent of passes yesterday afternoon to beat Falls Church, 32-0, in the 1947 opener for both schools.

Devitt scored midway in the first quarter when Gene Taylor passed 25 yards to his brother, George. The conversion attempt was blocked.

In the second period, Devitt marched 75 yards through the Falls Church line and then scored on a 10-yard pass from Jack McKay to Bill Kenealy. Gene Taylor converted.

From this point Devitt scored almost at will.

Taylor passed 40 yards to Doffert who ran 15 yards to score near the end of the second quarter. Taylor ran the ball himself in the third period for a score and also passed to McKay in the last minute of the game from two yards out for a fifth touchdown. He converted for the final point.

Little Hoyas Swamped, 21-0

Sidwell Friends School swamped Georgetown Prep, 21-0, yesterday at Garrett Park in the opening football game of the season for both teams.

Tommy Dean, Friends' fullback, paced his mates by scoring two touchdowns and passing for the third 6-pointer.

Dean opened the scoring in the second quarter by taking a 40-yard pass from Lefty McMurray and running 25 yards to pay dirt. Dean then hit McMurray with a 20-yard toss in the same period and McMurray ran 35 yards to score.

After the Friends line held Prep for four downs inside the Friends' 4 in the final quarter, Dean ran 75 yards a few plays later to the Prep 5 and carried the ball over from there.

Friends converted all three extra points.

Robinson Offered $15,000 To Meet Hursey-Bell Winner

WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPION Ray Robinson has been offered $15,000 to meet the winner of Monday's Smuggy Hursey-Tommy Bell Griffith Stadium contest, Promoter Goldie Ahearn announced last night.

If Robinson accepts—and the chances are better than even—the nontitle affair would be staged Monday, October 13, at Griffith Stadium.

George Gainsford, manager of the world's 147-pound king, informed Ahearn "we are interested in meeting the winner and I will be in Washington Monday to discuss the matter."

If Bell gets by Hursey—he was an 8-5 choice last night—and Robinson accepts the October 13 match, it would mark the third meeting between the welterweight king and the Youngstown (Ohio) belter. Bell lost a close 10-round nontitle decision to Robinson two years ago and was again beaten in a title bout December 20, 1946, after flooring Robinson for a count of eight.

Robinson's last outing was a 62-second knockout over Flash Sebastian of Manila, in Madison Square Garden three weeks ago. He recently signed to meet the winner of last night's Tony Janiro-Tony Pellone bout for the title.

Bell is the No. 1 ranking welterweight contender and has no intentions of getting either himself or his reputation messed up against Hursey here Monday.

He went through another rugged workout at the Liberty A. C. yesterday and will put the finishing touches to his pre-fight preparations in a double-header session at Liberty this afternoon. He boxed at 2 o'clock with Hursey taking over an hour later.

Justice Department Probes Horseman's Monopoly Charge

A complaint alleging monopolistic practices on the part of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association is being investigated by the Department of Justice.

This was revealed yesterday by a department spokesman following the filing of a $200,000 libel suit in District Court against the Nationwide association of race horse owners and its vice president, John A. Manfuso, 743 15th st. ne.

Plaintiff was Wayne Kendrick, public accountant in the Rust Building and owner of a stable of horses which includes Panacea, Fleetest, Her Highness and Equisun, the latter a descendant of the champion stake horse Equipoise.

In addition to monetary compensation, Kendrick asked an injunction under the Sherman Antitrust Act to "restrain" the association from "conspiring" against him.

Basis of the libel suit was the allegation that the association caused to be printed in a racing newspaper and in two Washington newspapers a story to the effect that Kendrick had been suspended from the organization.

Kendrick alleged in the suit, filed by Attorneys A. K. Shipe and Walter Bastian, that he quit the association voluntarily because he disagreed with it on the matter of labor relations.

The suit charged that the association has acted to prevent horseshoers from attending to his horses thus interfering with his racing activities.

Mares' Trot Record Set at Delaware, Ohio

Delaware, Ohio, Sept. 19— (AP).—The world's record for trotting mares on a half-mile track fell by the wayside here this afternoon on the getaway program of the Delaware Grand Circuit harness racing card.

Onolee Hanover was brought from behind Algiers to win the second heat of the Dr. Spencer free for all trot in 2:01 3/5. The old record was set in 1943 by Mary M and tied in 1945 by Kaola.

Victory in the race finally went to Algiers who had won the first heat in 2:05 2/5 and out brushed Onolee Hanover in the final heat which was in 2:08 1/5.

Meyer Writes

World Bank Eases U. S. Aid Burden

The World Bank, an institution without parallel in the history of international finance, represents a genuine effort to help the world recover from war. At the same time it it a piece of enlightened self-interest from the American point of view, says Eugene Meyer in the Reader's Digest for October. Meyer, former director of the War Finance Corporation, governor of the Federal Reserve Board and first chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, guided the organization of the World Bank, served as its first president and resigned upon the completion of his task.

The World Bank's purpose is to lend money to reconstruct devastated countries or to increase the productive capacity of countries not fully developed. In this, Meyer points out, the World Bank's function is the same, on a large scale, as that of your home town bank on Main st., which lends money to develop local enterprises. Neither the World Bank nor the Main st. bank can dispense charity, and both make only such loans as are deemed sound.

With offices in Washington and an American president, the World Bank is nevertheless truly international in management. Key posts are filled by experts from several countries. The board of governors consists of one member from each participating nation. Voting power on the bank's board is roughly proportioned to the share of capital owned by each nation. The United States' share is approximately three eighths of the total. Russia refused to join the bank, though she took part in the Bretton Woods conference, which set up the bank in 1944.

The existence of the World Bank means that American taxpayers will not have to bear the whole burden of restoring Europe to economic health, the article says. The bank's first loan, 250 million dollars to France, is cited as an example of taxpayer relief.

Guarantee Urged for Builders

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Federal Government should guarantee builders of moderate priced dwellings against financial losses resulting from any drops in construction costs over the next five years, a representative of the American Institute of Architects said yesterday.

Louis Justement, chairman of the Institute's Urban Planning Committee, said that what is needed is more housing immediately but that it is "not realistic" to expect any but the most desperate home purchasers to buy now. Neither, he declared, is it realistic to expect investors in rental housing to take the risk of building on the basis of today's price.

He tied his five-year guarantee against loss to the condition that the housing — either moderate priced homes or medium-rental housing—would be built during the next two years.

Justement told the joint Senate-House committee investigating housing that may "unwilling" purchasers will default on FHA-insured loans anyway as soon as the housing crisis is over.

"Unwilling home purchasers," Justement declared, "are now compelled to buy in order to have a roof over their heads. Many will default, however, when the current housing emergency has passed if they find that lower prices have wiped out their equities."

Even this proposal, Justement said, will not solve the housing problem. It would not be sufficient to provide "necessary housing to meet the needs of Negroes and low-income families."

He suggested that "there should be an immediate resumption of public housing for the specific purpose of meeting the needs of the present housing emergency."

The Wyatt housing program failed, Justement declared, because "it relied too largely on restrictions and priorities at a time when the whole mood and temper of the people were directed towards removal of all war-time controls. It attempted to solve the entire housing problem on the basis of private housing and was not able to adopt any solutions requiring public housing. It did not sufficiently stimulate construction of rental housing."

Contending for the merits of his insurance plan, Justement asked:

"Is there any good reason, however, why the entire risk of buying at present high levels should be shouldered by those who are unfortunate enough not to live in a dwelling which they bought or began to rent in the prewar period?

"In the event of a substantial drop in future construction costs it would seem only fair to afford some relief to the citizen who is compelled by circumstances to buy at present prices."

(a) Construction of dwelling units must be started prior to December 31, 1949.

(b) The extent of the loss, if any, would be computed by multiplying the amount of the mortgage by the difference between the construction cost index on the date of recording the mortgage and the construction cost index on December 31, 1952.

(c) The payment made, if any, would be used to reduce the amount of the mortgage. The interest of mortgagees would be protected without resort to FHA debentures, and the equity owners would benefit through reduced interest and amortization payments on the outstanding balance of the mortgage."

Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.), acting chairman of the second round table on housing problems, commented that Justement's recommendations would undoubtedly cause wide comment and perhaps differences of opinion.

"until further notice." The agency claimed a complete tieup of its 1200 vehicles in New York City.

Thomas J. Murphy, secretary-treasurer of Local 459, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said that local had not agreed to strike and considered the walkout a "grandstand, spectacular play" by officers of Local 808 to aid them in forthcoming union elections.

Local 459 has headquarters in Jersey City, N. J., and claims 1700 members in New York City and Hudson County, N. J.

Local 808 said Local 459 had "backed out" at the last minute and that individual members of 459 were remaining away from their jobs. Local 808 claims 5000 members.

The teamsters' two-year contract expired June 26 and negotiations for renewal were begun September 9. The issues were not made public, but a union spokesman said the employes sought wage increases and a reduction of the 44-hour work week to 40 hours.

Last Monday, President Truman issued an executive order directing creation of a three-man board to investigate the teamsters' dispute with the agency and report back by October 15. Two days later the White House announced that Leverett Edwards, Oklahoma City lawyer; Judge H. Nathan Swain of the Indiana Supreme Court and Norman J. Ware, West Hartford, Conn., economist and labor arbitrator, had been named to the board.

The Crop Reporting Board at the Department of Agriculture yesterday was attempting to estimate the extent of the damage to Florida citrus fruits by this week's hurricane. Figures will not be available for at least a week, the board said.

U. S. Control Feared

3. Fear on the part of grain brokers that legislation to give the Government control over margin requirements and other operations of the grain exchanges may result from recent wild price gyrations. A statement by J. O. McClintock, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, challenging the Government's right to interfere in operations of the board, may precipitate such legislation, many brokers fear.

4. The increasing consumer resistance to the recent inflationary rise in food prices. Added to this is the expressed fear of dealers in nonfood items that the high food prices will reduce buying in their lines.

(5) Greatly increased cash offerings of corn by farmers throughout the corn belt were reported by country elevators. This indicated many growers believe prices have reached their limit and are beginning to unload.

Argentine Drought Eased

(6) Spring rains were reported in the wheat belt in Argentina, quieting fears of a drought that might have caused a disastrous drop in world food supplies. An unusually arid southern winter has just ended.

An indication that a sharp cut in exports will be recommended by the Cabinet Food Committee Monday was given by Agriculture Secretary Anderson at Chicago.

An analysis of this year's record wheat crop plus the carryover from a year ago would show that the United States has plenty of wheat for both export and domestic users, Anderson said.

"If we export up to 400 million bushels, that would still leave us several million bushels for inventory," he said. Until yesterday all export estimates Anderson would vouchsafe were in the neighborhood of last year's exports, or 355 million bushels.

Worst Winter Of All Forecast For Europeans

Europe faces its "hardest and hungriest" winter of "all the war and postwar years," Maurice Pate, executive director of the International Children's Emergency Fund, declared yesterday.

He announced simultaneously, at his first press conference since returning from Europe Thursday, that some 15 million children overseas could expect no outside assistance in the near future to bolster their grossly inadequate diets.

With funds currently available, Pate said, only five million children can be fed by ICEF in the next six months. The remainder "will just lag on as they did in the hard war years," Pate added.

Commenting on conditions in Europe, Pate labeled recent droughts as "a double tragedy." Resources which might have been used for equipment and machinery of all kinds to "advance their economy" now will have to be diverted for replanting of crops and purchase of grain, he said.

During the present General Assembly session of the United Nations, Pate said, "we are going to make a most serious effort to raise the entire 30 million dollars necessary if we are to receive the total 40 million dollars authorized by the U. S. Government."

Countries which have so far "definitely indicated their intention to contribute to the fund," in addition to those which have already given, were listed as Czechoslovakia, the Dominican Republic, Norway, Luxembourg and Switzerland. "Encouraging conversations," it was said, have been held with the governments of a number of Latin American countries, as well as with Sweden, Iceland, the Union of South Africa and New Zealand.

Pate said the Pope expressed a "most deep interest" in the work of ICEF at a conference two weeks ago.

$143,000,000 Budget Asked In D. C. Department Estimates

when regular revenue falls short of budget needs, Fowler warned. A 10-million-dollar municipal surplus was used up in the 1947 and 1948 budgets, principally by salary increases authorized by Congress, he revealed.

"And if the present high cost of living keeps up, higher salaries will certainly be the next item of discussion," he pointed out. "If that happens, we'll certainly need more taxes of some sort."

Mason said the District Government has outgrown both the old District Building at 14th and E sts. nw., and the new Municipal Center at 300 Indiana ave. nw.

There appears to be no way of answering requests for additional space, particularly for the Health and Welfare Departments, he asserted. The Health Department alone needs space for alcoholic clinics, cancer control activities and mental hygiene clinics.

Gallinger Increase Asked

Largest increases over this year's appropriations were asked by the Health Department, Public Schools, Public Welfare and the National Guard.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland requested that Gallinger Hospital's operating budget be increased from the $3,450,000 allotted this year to $5,488,000 next year. He also sought $5,058,790 for capital improvements at the hospital. No funds for capital outlay were granted by Congress in the 1948 budget.

In addition, he asked for $302,250 worth of capital improvements for the Health Department itself and $861,000 for the same purpose at Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium. No capital outlay funds were granted for either the department or the sanatorium this year.

Millions for Schools

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning estimated it would take a million dollars more to operate District schools in fiscal 1949 than it will this year.

He also asked capital improvements totaling $11,600,000, compared with the $4,269,230 he will receive this year.

Welfare Director Ray L. Huff submitted a total budget of $23,944,400, compared with the $11,481,300 the Welfare Department will receive during fiscal 1948.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, topped all departments by asking for $2,905,637 next year, after receiving a mere $68,600 for the 1948 fiscal year.

Second St. Marys County Gambling Trial Ends as Jury Reports Hopeless Deadlock

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 19 (AP). A second of the St. Marys County gambling trials ended in a hung jury today.

After deliberating an hour and a half, the panel which heard evidence on six gambling counts against James O. Hill, 45-year-old operator of a dry-cleaning firm at Lexington Park, advised the court they were unable to agree.

Asked if they could get together if they had more time, the jurors reported they were hopelessly deadlocked, so they were dismissed and the case was continued until next term of court in March.

Hill was the third of 23 defendants to go on trial. A jury last night convicted John King on all six counts of an indictment which charged him with running slot machines in a bus terminal near the entrance to the Navy's Patuxent River air station at Cedar Point.

The first case, based on six similar counts against Harry Weiner of Hollywood, ended in a hung jury Wednesday night.

Attorneys for King filed motions for a new trial today, but they were denied by the court. The defense contended the indictment charged him with the violations on last May 31 but that the only evidence presented concerned May 29.

Attaches of the court said, as the judges adjourned until Monday, that they doubted any more of the cases would be brought to trial until King's attorneys file an appeal and there is a higher court ruling.

Several officers and members of the St. Marys County Civic Association took the stand against Hill, as they had against King and Weiner. The association for several months has been pressing for enforcement of Maryland laws which prohibit slot machines.

WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1947 ***

D. C. Asked To Increase Police, Fire Allowances

11.5 Million Set As Actual Need For Departments Next Fiscal Year

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The Police and Fire Departments asked the District Commissioners yesterday for $11,546,957 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949.

This is an increase of more than 7 per cent over funds allocated for the current fiscal year.

The 1949 budget of the Police Department should be $7,448,957, including the annual allocation from the highway fund, the Commissioners were told.

The Fire Department estimate was set at $4,108,000.

Both Request Funds

Both departments asked funds for construction purposes.

In submitting his estimate, Maj. Robert J. Barrett stated:

"The Superintendent of Police is not unaware of the difficulties encountered by the Commissioners in maintaining a balanced budget. However, it is felt that it is not within his duties to assume the position of the Budget officer for the District of Columbia Government. For this reason, the estimates of the cost of operating the Metropolitan Police Department are based on what, in our estimatation, are actual requirements."

The police department asked 6 per cent more than it received for this fiscal year.

The major called for a force of 2000 men and increased civilian personnel to cope with crime and safety problems. He pointed to the increase in violent crimes since the end of the war, an increase in juvenile criminals and an influx of migrants to Washington as the need for the increased staff.

Spirit of Unrest Cited

'A spirit of unrest is apparently the aftermath of the war," he said.

He plans during the 1949 fiscal year, he said, to build a new House of Detention and Woman's Bureau. He asked for additions to his force sufficient to staff the proposed Fourteenth Precinct in the Southeast area.

Another item in the police budget was for expenses during the next presidential inauguration in January, 1949. The major set $37,100 as the figure of what it will cost extra to police the city and provide escorts, patrols, first-aid and comfort stations between January 15 and 26, 1949.

A police inspector, three captains, 19 lieutenants, 3 sergeants, 3 corporals and 178 privates are needed on the force now, the report stated.

A sum of $10,000 is needed for public order and portection during public recognition given visiting dignitaries and returning military personnel, the report stated.

A civilian secretary is needed for each police captain and for heads of various bureaus, Major Barrett said.

In the Fire Department, increases in rank are requested for various personnel, and replacement of obsolete equipment. Capital outlays for two fire engine houses in the area of 49th and East Capitol sts. and 24th and Irving sts. se. will require $263,000, the report stated.

The Fire Department reported that per capita loss from fires during the fiscal year ending in 1947 dropped to $1.80 from the $2.10 figure in 1946. In 1945 the figure was $1.16 per person, in 1944, 98 cents per person and in 1943, it was 79 cents per person.

Policeman's Just a Sucker For Girl (Age 4) With a Way

Eloquence seems to be a family trait in the clan of Commissioner Guy Mason. At least it seemed that way to a traffic policeman yesterday after a brief encounter with Mason's 4-year-old granddaughter, Ann Harnsberger.

Annmade a rostrum of a seat in her father's car and talked so sweetly to the officer that he tore upa $5 parking ticket originally designed for Ann's father, Humphrey P. Harnsberger, 4 Newportave., Westgate, Md.

Maston told the story yesterday. Harnsberger, he explained, had stopped his car in a no-parking zone inthe4800 block Massachusetts ave. nw., while he sprinted into a drugstore for a carton of cigarettes.

Ann was patiently waiting in the auto when the policeman came up and began making a parking ticket. Ann leaned out the window and began talking. According to Mason, the conversation went something like this:

Ann: "Whatcha doing?"

Officer: 'Writing."

Ann: "You're a policeman, aren't you?"

Officer: "Yes."

Ann: "Mommy says policemen are kind to little girls."

Officer (beginning to grin): "We try to be."

Ann: "Do you have any little girls at home?"

Officer: "No."

At this point, Harnsberger emerged from the drugstore and found the policeman tossing away some scraps of paper.

"Your little girl just saved you from getting a $5 ticket," the officer. "Now get going and don't park here again," he warned with a smile.

Woman Caught in Escalator Sues Station for $10,000

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A woman, who charged that both her feelings and "posterior extremity" were painfully bruised when her dress became entangled in an escalator, yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages in District Court.

She is Mrs. Kathleen Rhea Backstrom, 6034 Broad st., Brookmont, Md., wh named as defendant the Washington Terminal Co., Union Station.

According to the charges, Mrs. Backstrom took an escalator at the station to descend to train level on June 7.

She said that because the escalator was "operated negligently" she was flung to its base and her clothing became entangled in the machinery.

This caused "her person to be so exposed to the public" that she suffered "great humiliation and embarrassment for 10 minutes," the suit alleged.

Finally, the suit set out, an assistant station master arrived armed with a key, and reversed the machinery fraaing the plaintiff from both the escalator and the glances of passersby.

Mrs. Backstrom charged that her back and shoulders were injured and her "posterior extremity painfully bruised."

The experience caused her "physical pain, mental disturbance and shock," the suitasserted.

An additional $5000 is asked by Mrs. Backstrom's husband, R. J. L. Backstrom, who asserted that injuries suffered by his wife had deprived himof her aid over a period of time.

The suit wasfiled by Attorney Frank J. Meyer.

Chemistry Tells

Tests Raise Convictions Of Drivers

Chemical tests are responsible for one fourth of the driving while drunk convictions in local courts, Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the traffic division, said yesterday.

The certainty of these tests also has caused the number of persons pleading guilty when charged with driving while drunk to rise from a negligible figure to almost 85 per cent, Miller said at a luncheon of the Sphinx Club.

The use of routine tests of blood and urine in cases where drivers are suspected of intoxication was adopted here in July, 1945. To show the effect of the tests, Inspector Miller quoted figures that showed in 1944, there were 137 driving while drunk cases; in 1945, there were 154; in 1946, 316, and so far in 1947, there are 203.

Part of the increase, Inspector Millersaid, is attributable to increased traffic, but the larger amount is due to the fact police are certain of the guilt of the accused when chemical tests were used.

The clincher showing effectivenessof the tests is provided by figures that show that now 90 per cent of those charged are convicted. In 1944and before that, he said, the figures was 65 per cent.

Only 11 persons have refused to take the test so far, Miller said.

Md. Prisoner Pardoned, Held For Va. Sentence

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—Raymond F. Miller, 25, of Portsmouth, Va., was released from the Maryland penitentiary today on a pardon, but Baltimore police arrested him immediately to serve a 25-year murder sentence in Virginia.

Miller was convicted in Portsmouth in 1939 on a charge that he killed his grandfather there on October 24, 1937. He was arrested in Baltimore about two weeks later, after the holdup of a trolley conductor, and investigation disclosed he used the same .32 pistol in the holdup as in the slaying.

More than a year after he had been sentenced to 15 years in the Maryland penitentiary for the armed robbery, Maryland authorities released him long enough to stand trial in Portsmouth for the slaying.

He was pardoned after serving 9½ years of the 15-year Maryland sentence.

Park Board Votes Annex To Building

Pan American Union Project Approved; Three-Way Study Of Parking Agreed

Final plans for construction of anannexto the Pan American Union Building wereapproved yesterday by the National Capital Park Planning Commission.

The commission gave the proposed project a green light after officials agreed to abandon plans for arear entrance on Virginia ave. in favor of a service entrance on 19th st. which will boast concealed, privateparking space.

Maj. Gen U. S. Grant, 3d, chairman, said plans call for development of a "little garden" in "Latin American style." He said he did not know how much the entire project would cost but reported a $600,000gift from the Carnegie Institutiontowards the construction.

Parking Study Approved

Earlier, the commission agreed to make a three-way study of off-street parking for Federal employes and approved plans for a new laboratory building on the Bureau of Standards grounds.

It voted to join with the Public Buildings Administration and the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency in the study of off-street parking.

General Grant pointed out that "solutions are not easy to find."

No time was set for construction of the laboratory. It will be a PBA project, it was said.

The commission deferred action on a proposal to build a Georgetown boys' club in an A-residence, restricted area, at the north side of S st., east of the commercial district on Wisconsin ave. The matter was left in the hands of John Nolen, director of planning for the commission. A hearing is scheduled Wednesday before the board of zoning adjustment, it was announced.

Fountain Decision Deferred

Proposed closing of 6th st., between Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. nw., to create a suitable site for a Mellon memorial fountain, was rejected by the commission. Because of "its traffic use," it was ruled the street should not be closed, General Grant said. An alternate location, at 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., was suggested, General Grant said, but action was deferred pending further study.

The commission voted to retain the present playground at New York ave. and 1st st. nw. "in its present use." A recommendation had been sought by the District Recreation Department.

Other items on which action was deferred:

1. Disposition of the Patterson School site.

2. What to do with a wild rice and bird sanctuary in the Anacostia Park.

Commission members also went on a "field trip" to review land purchase projects for next year. Next meetings were set for October 30 and 31.

Teaspoon Is Removed From Girl's Intestine

Passaic, N. J., Sept. 19 (AP).—An oversized, 6½-inch-long teaspon, was successfully removed from the upper intestine of a 19-year-old girl at Beth Israel Hospital, Dr. Anton P. Randazzo said today.

Dr. Randazzo, who would not discuss how the pretty brunette swallowed the piece of silverware, identified his patient as Miss Ann Mulick, of Little Falls.

Abduction Charge Faces District Man

Defendant Ordered o Pay $22.50 Weekly Toward Support of Wife and Youngster

A 24-year-old District man who deserted his wife and infant daughter to live with a 17-year-old girl was held for grand jury action on a charge of abduction in Prince Georges County Court at Marlboro yesterday.

The defendant, James Francis Hampson, 71-A L st. nw., also was found guilty of nonsupport and was ordered by Judge Arthur Owens to pay $22.50 a week toward support of his wife and child. A larceny charge also filed against him was dismissed.

Hampson was accused in a warrant sworn out by William A. Cissell, 5707 63d ave., E. Riverdale, of abducting Cissell's step-daughter, with whom he allegedly shared a room for several months after the girl left home following a dispute with her parents.

In demanding that the abduction charge be upheld, Assistant State's Attorney Harvey Machem charged that Hampson violated the State's statutory law in taking the girl away from her home without the consent of her parents, despite the fact that she obviously went with him willingly.

"The statutory law is designed to protect under-age girls because they are not considered mature enough to decide for themselves," Machem declared, "and the girl in this case simply was a victim of circumstances."

Spectators in the crowded courtroom applauded loudly when Machem added: "In a case like this the best thing for the man would be to have some one take him outside and give him a good whipping."

Hampson also was charged with stealing license plates from Cissell's automobile, but the charge was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Foundation Gives $165,000 School To W. Va. Town

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 19.—A high school building, estimated to cost $165,000 exclusive of ground and equipment, will be given to the community at Inwood, eight miles south of here, by the C. H. Musselman Foundation, it was announced today.

The project was selected by trustees of the foundation as one of the projects deserving of financial assistance in conformity with the will of the late C. H. Musselman. The foundation, whose headquarters are in Biglerville, Pa., has had a fruit processing plant at Inwood since 1920.

The school site is on the western side of Route 11 just south of Inwood and includes about 20 acres of land. The community has its own elementary school building now, but sends its high school students to Bunker Hill, two miles south. The new building, for junior and senior high school students, will be between Inwood and Bunker Hill. The school board will pay an estimated $32,000 for land and equipment.

Congressman to Quit Post Over Ruling on Sandwich

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Representative Harold F. Youngblood (R., Mich.) yesterday said he would resign from the House District Subcommittee on Health and Education after Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott rendered a decision in a Health Department case against him.

Youngblood

Christ Catsohanis, proprietor of the Legion Cafe, 119 B st. se., was found not guilty on a charge of selling unwholesome food for human consumption, a sandwich which Representative Youngblood said made his wife ill when she ate it.

The Congress member announced his resignation plans to reporters following the three-hour trial.

"If this is all the support I am going to get as a member of the subcommitte I am going to resign immediately," he declared. "I receive my pay for representing the people of the city of Detroit—they send me down here to take care of their affairs. From now on I am going to concentrate my time to the people I represent, as it will be more appreciated."

"I have been devoting my time to District residents," he added, "and I feel that I have been wasting my time. As a subcommittee member I have not had much cooperation from local law enforcement officers."

The Congress member said that he might stay on the House subcommittee on District Reorganization and Hohe Rule "a while longer if I feel it is appreciated."

He added that he fel tthe merits of the case were "up to the judge's discretion and I have no doubt Judge Scott gave his best judgment on the facts." However, he said, he was still convinced that the sandwich he bought from the Legion Cafe on September 12 contained spoiled chicken.

Judge Scott based his decision on the fact that 2¼ hours elapsed between the time that Youngblood bought the sandwich and the time it was delivered to the Fifth Precinct station when it was put in a refrigerator to stop deterioration.

Testimony was given by a District health department inspector, a bacteriologist and a chemist, that the meat in the sandwich was spoiled when they tested it. However, Defense Counsel Frank H. Myers argued that there was no proof that the sandwich was decomposed at the time it was bought and that the examinations had taken place on following days.

In handing down his decision, Judge Scott said, "Since this is a criminal charge, the man must be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. There is a reasonable doubt in this case."

Menhaden Is Called Best Crab Pot Bait

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—Experiments of the Department of Research and Education indicate fresh scrap fish such as menhaden are the best bait for crab pots.

The department said artificial bait was not satisfactory in the tests, "since in 15 feet of water it caught only 45 per cent as many crabs as the brined menhaden, which in turn probably is not as efficient as fresh fish." The artificial lure proved more effective in 25 feet of water, however, averaging up to 74 per cent as many crabs as the menhaden.

Bandit Slugs Man, 63, and Takes $139 In Silver Coin

Store Manager Hit On Way From Bank; Head of Candy Shop Held Up for $83

Two robberies in the District yesterday afternoon netted thieves $2220 in cash.

Mrs. Bonnie Paris, of 11-D Laurel Hill rd., Greenbelt ,Md., manager of the Miss America Candy Store, 1306 G st, nw., was robbed of $83.01 in cash at about 6 p. m., as she was closing the store.

Mrs. Paris told a reporter for The Washington Post that she was letting her last customer of the day out the door when a man pushed his way in with the remark: stick-up."

She was forced to turn over money in the cash register and then go upstairs, where a clerk, Mrs. Hazel Royal of 1206 10th st. nw., was dressing to go home at the time of the robbery.

As the man slammed the door to the upstairs, Mrs. Paris heard him say, "I'm waiting for my car."

A bag of silver totaling $139 was taken from John Samuel Ledford, 63, of 1246 Penn st, ne., manager of a chain store at 8th and F sts. ne., as he was returning to the store about 2 p. m., from the American Security and Trust Company's Northeast Branch, 722 H st. ne.

Ledford told police he was struck down by a blow behind the left ear from the butt of an automatic pistol carried by a man about 30 years old, 5 feet 5 inches, weighing about 150 pounds, of stocky build and ruddy complexion, who made his getaway in a car driven by a man in a white shirt and felt hat.

A man who cashed three bad checks at the Munsey Trust Co. during the last week made his escape yesterday while attempting to cash a fourth when a teller recognized him and summoned police.

The fugitive, described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, about 35 years old, wearing dark clothes and carrying a brief case, apparently got away through a back exit to the building before police arrived to throw a cordon about the place and make a room by room search of the 12-floor building.

Police said the man successfully cashed checks for $60, $70 and $75, signing the names of Donald N. Newman, A. R. Roberts and Jack R. Bentley on counter checks. The check presented yesterday was for $75 and was signed H. E. Brian.

Rosters Growing In Church Schools, Methodists Find

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—Church school enrollment has increased more in the past two years than at any time since 1923, Bishop W. W. Peele told the Virginia Conference Church School rally of the Crusade for Christ at Centenary Methodist Church here today.

Speaking to more than 800 Methodist pastors, Sunday school superintendents and teachers of the Virginia Conference, Bishop Peele said that for two decades after 1923 enrollment in Methodist Church schools decreased about 20 per cent, although population of the country increased 20 per cent.

"Now," he said, "the tide has turned. I think I am correct in saying that more persons joined the church school of the Methodist Church last year than in any other year in its history."

School Attendance Is Cut by Pickets

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—Less than 15 per cent of the enrollment of the surburban Colgate School were in classes today, as parents protesting "insanitary conditions" picketed the building for the second successive day.

Several parents accompanied their children to school this morning and argued with pickets as to whether or not the children should be led through the lines into the building. Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sept. 19. Dr. A. W. Armentrout of Martinsburg, presiding at the meeting here, said a major consideration for the change was the delay involved under the present system in having to send tests to Charleston for laboratory work.

Under the new plan, which has State Health Department approval, there would be one centrally located office with adequate laboratory facilities and staff sufficient to give full-time attention to each of the three counties.

nish them with suffiecient food and clothing; and, above all, to provide competent meical and nursing care and kindly attendants to supervise them."

The Governor also listed other items upon which revenue from the sales tax would be spent, including hospitals for the chronically ill and aged, and medical care for "thousands of less fortunate Marylanders, who otherwise might suffer and die . . ."

Painting the background to his proposal, the Governor said that last fall he was "led to believe" there would be a general fund surplus of $18,389,000 when the budget for the present biennium became effective on June 30 of this date.

"However," he said, "I was gradually and rudely awakened to the fact that this large sum was not free of obligations and commitments as to its use. Large amounts of the expected surplus either had been dedicated or obligated to specific uses . . ."

Although requests from various departments "were drastically reduced to emergency items only," he said, "it was necessary to appropriate $4,618,560" to meet these emergencies.

Meanwhile, he added, the amount of revenue expected by the State for this year also was reduced by $2,307,750 when the special session of the Legislature passed a law distributing part of the income from horse racing to Baltimore City and the counties.

Terming conditions in the five hospitals for the mentally ill "a disgrace to the State," the Governor said he granted a $4,634,849 increase in their appropriation.

After citing these and other unexpected expenses, the Governor said he found it necessary to provide $15,167,321.51 above anticipated revenues to balance the budget for the biennium period from July 1, 1947, to June 30, 1949.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin with a veil of rosepoint arranged with a coronet fastened with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried bouvardia, gardenias and white orchids.

The attendants were Miss Polly Hill of Smiths Ferry, Mass., a cousin of the bride, who served as maid of honor; Mrs. William J. Evans, jr., of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Cynthia Hill of Smiths Ferry, also a cousin; Miss Elaine Patterson of Forest Hills, Long Island, and Miss Margaret Cushman of Upper Montclair.

The bride's cousin, Kaaren Nielsen, of Smiths Ferry, was flower girl.

Maj. Da Costa Entertains for U. S. Attache

By Elizabeth Maguire

In honor of the United States Military Attache to Honduras, the Honduras Military Attache to the United States entertained yesterday afternoon in the Chinese Room at the Mayflower Hotel. Maj. Juan DaCosta was the host and Lieut. Col. Harold S. Isaacson the guest of honor.

Mrs. Thomas de Lashmutt of Middleburg, wearing the new hemline, assisted in receiving, while Mr. de Lashmutt mingled with the guests. Mrs. Isaacson was unable to attend the fete, but will sail with her husband when he leaves for Honduras on October 14.

Lavish Buffet Served

Major DaCosta has been in Washington four years and is a popular member of the diplomatic set. Yesterday he treated his friends to a gala party, with lavish buffet and refreshments. Mixed autumn flowers centered a long table from which hors d'oeuvres, turkeys and hams and various sweets were served. A cake iced in blue and white bore the Honduras coat of arms.

The Ambassador of Honduras, Julian R. Caceres, was not there, as he has stopped off in Honduras en route back from Rio. His son, Cesar Caceres, was on hand, however, squiring pretty Miss Sheila McCabe. Ralph DaCosta, brother of the host, sat at a table with another pretty damsel, Miss Amelia Darr. Col. and Mrs. Emory Adams were also in the gathering the latter in a black lace ballet dress with black satin bow in her hair.

State Department Guests

From the State Department came Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newbegin and Gordon Reid. The military included Col. Oscar Morales Lopez of Guatemala, Gen. Walter Todd, Gen. Frederick Irvin, Lieut. Gen. Leobardo C. Ruiz of Mexico, and Gen. Leopoldo Piedrahita of Colombia.

Other guests were Edgar Morris, Mrs. Gregorio Marcus, Mrs. Ray Pierce, Matthew O'Hearn, Donato Diaz, president of the Bank of Honduras, Mrs. Francisco Bandi, Miss Molly King, H. F. Johnson of Racine, Wis., and Miss Malinda Tarris.

Nurses' Senior Class Honored at Garfield

Members of the graduating class of 1947 of Garfield Memorial Hospital School of Nursing were honor guests at a tea given by the faculty in the school library yesterday afternoon. Fall flowers were used in decoration and the school colors, blue and gold, fashioned nosegays for each member of the class.

Miss Shelby W. Patton, director, school of nursing and nursing service, and Miss Alice McWhorter, former superintendent of nurses, were at the tea table. Guests were received by Miss Rachel A. Driver, Mrs. Lucie Strauss, Miss Elizabeth Stokes, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodward, Miss Etta Anne Hincker, Mrs. Barbara Kelly, Miss Mary Louise Frye, Miss Mary Tankard, Miss Phoebe Recht, Miss Virginia Smith and Miss Emma Chisholm, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Anniversary Events for Wellesley

A luncheon at the British Embassy, a tea at the Brazilian Embassy and a dinner in the Presidential Room of the Statler mark Saturday, October 4, as a gala day in the opening of the Wellesley seventy-fifth anniversary fund campaign. Washington chairman of the drive is Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of Justice Burton, who has just returned from a summer in Switzerland.

Mildred McAfee Horton, president of Wellesley College, will be in town for the launching of the campaign and will be honor guest at the luncheon to be given by the British Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel and at the tea planned by the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, whose daughter, Nora, attended Wellesley.

President Horton is scheduled to speak at the subscription dinner at the Statler. Also on the program is Loy W. Henderson, director of the Office of Eastern and African Affairs of the State Department. Mr. Henderson has just returned from a special mission to Greece, where he conferred with Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh and former Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, chief of the American Mission for Aid to Greece.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Can you tell me where I can find beige raffia braid, brown linen thread, and a loom for weaving place mats? I have looked all over Washington. What is the address of the hobby shop in Georgetown? W. D. M.

Raffia braid in a natural shade is on sale at the hobby shop located in the 3200 block of M st. nw., in Georgetown. Brown linen thread is available in the notions department of a local store. None of the stores seem to have looms especially made for working with raffia, although several have small looms that might be adapted to this purpose.

Can your tell me how to French-fry onions so that they will be crisp? My fried onions are never crisp, like those one gets at restaurants. E. P. S.

Try the following recipe:

½ cup milk
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Wash and peel onions, slice ¼ inch thick and separate slices into rings. Dip into milk and then into flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry in hot deep fat for 4 to 6 minutes, or until lightly browned. Drain on unglazed paper.

What is the best way to get cotton marquisette curtains as perky and stiff after washing as when purchased? J. S. R.

Gum arabic solution for freshening thin cotton fabrics can be made by adding 1 quart of boiling water to 1 teapoon powdered gum arabic. Stir over a low heat until the arabic is completely dissolved, then add 1 quart of cold water. Cool to lukewarm, then dip curtains.

1. How can I remove rust from a white cotton dress?

2. Do you know where a china pattern called "Triumph," Royal Fortune Maroon, made by the Sebring Pottery Co., is sold in Washington? E. W. C.

1. Sprinkle stain with salt, moisten with lemon juice, and expose to direct sunlight. If stain still remains, repeat treatment.

2. As far as I can determine, none of the local dealers carries the pottery you asked about.

Austria Treaty Commission Held Failure

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 19.—The special Allied commission on the Austrian treaty, which has held 50 sessions in the last four months in an effort to reach a compromise, was seen as a complete failure today by diplomatic observers.

These observers—American, British and French—said they believed failure to make any progress, after weeks of digging up facts and figures, was due to Russian reluctance to sign any peace treaty for Austria that would oblige her to withdraw her line of communications troops from Hungary and Romania as well as Austria.

Russia does not wish to leave southeast Europe as long as there is a possibility that the United States may send troops to Greece and Turkey, some of these informants said, and may hope that Austria herself eventually will turn to communism out of sheer despair of ever attaining her independence while her government is sympathetic to the Western powers.

As a consequence of the failure to make any progress in the four months' negotiations, Austrians hold little hope of anything concrete being done either at the deputy foreign ministers' meeting in London in November, when the German and Austrian treaties are to be tackled once again.

The committee, assigned to its task by the Moscow foreign ministers' council, never progressed beyond discussion of Article 35 of the projected treaty, which deals with German assets in Austria.

Allied Program Cracks Down on German Farmers

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Allied bipartite food and agricultural board announced today a plan to require each farmer in the British and American zones of Germany to meet an individual food delivery quota next year.

Allied and German sources have contended retention of food by farmers for personal or black market uses had accentuated Germany's food problem.

The board said that next year individual farmers would receive "written notification of their obligations."

The board also said that efforts would be intensified next year to increase the amount of land available for growing crops by the conversion of additional woodlands, parks and army maneuver grounds into farmland.

Payroll Met in Pesos To Dramatize Trade

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 19 (AP).—Parker Pen Co. employes were paid off in pesos today and found they could spend the Mexican money as easily as any other kind.

Company officials estimated some 367,000 pesos—about $73,000—were paid out to 2000 employes. Merchants cooperated, adopting a dual pricing system with merchandise tabbed at both dollar and peso levels. It was all part of a stunt to dramatize to Parker employes and local residents their stake in world trade.

It's Carnival Time on Alaska Avenue . . .

UNSOLICITED AID FOR THE RED CROSS—Out on the lawn at 7308 Alaska ave. ne., yesterday and the day before a full-fledged carnival was in progress. And, weather permitting, it'll be there again today. Three neighborhood youngsters—Joe Spicer, Ronny Furman and Bobby Harris—thought they'd like to help the Red Cross so they went to work and built carnival booths and solicited merchants and friends for prizes. Then the lawn carnival was opened with pink lemonade, bingo, wheels and other trappings. Here Bobby Harris (left) and Ronny Furman play the roles of salesmen. On the purchaser's side of the counter are (from left) Esther Jill Furman, 6; Fred Spicer, 7, and Margaret Colliton, 13. Today's the last day. Better step right up, folks

2 Men Receive Suspended Terms in Theft of Meat

Two Washington men were given suspended sentences in District Court yesterday after they promised to make restitution for more than 3000 pounds of meat they admitted they stole from the Pennsylvania Railroad Benning yards terminal last August.

The men, Arthur Charles Cornwell, 44, of 1256 6th st. sw., and Joseph Shipman, 36, of 3910 Burns pl. se., pleaded guilty to taking 205 pounds of Canadian bacon and 142 pounds of beef.

Associate Justice Matthew F. McGuire sentenced Shipman to two to six months, suspended, and placed him on probation for three years, and Cornwell to one to three months, suspended, and probation for two years.

In another case, James A. Tennant, 22, of 1347 E. Capitol st. faced Justice McGuire for sentencing for taking a Railway Express Agency truck on a pleasure ride to Maryland.

Justice McGuire pronounced sentence of 6 to 18 months, remarking to Prosecutor Edward Molenof, "I want you to put him somewhere where he can be rehabilitated."

Farm Auction Brings Suit

One Montgomery County farmer sued another yesterday for $10,000 in damages, claiming the defendant "chilled" the bidding in a recent auction sale by making "disparaging and malicious remarks."

John B. Offutt of Poolesville named Raymond E. Poole, also of Poolesville, as defendant in the suit filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

At his livestock and farm machinery auction held last month, Offutt claimed, Poole stated in the presence of other bidders that the farm machinery would be sold only to Offutt's sons, that cows placed on the auction block had not been milked for two days prior to the sale and that calves offered for sale with the cows did not belong to the cows.

The net result of Poole's "chilling" remarks was a substantial loss in the sale of the livestock and machinery, Offutt charged. The suit is believed to be the first of its kind filed in Montgomery County.

Veterans Hold That Houses Are Not Constructed Properly

The Veterans' Administration yesterday disclosed it had received complaints from many veterans here that homes they have purchased under GI bill loan guarantees were poorly constructed or unfinished.

Approximately 270 complaints have been filed at regional headquarters here, the VA said. They list buckling floors, leaking basements, cracking walls, badly graded lots, poor workmanship and numerous other items.

The VA said that complaints have been so heavy that they are being listed in an index system according to the housing development involved.

The bulk of complaints have to do with basements that become flooded following a hard rain. Another common gripe concerns the lack of waterproofing. Faulty and inadequate heating systems also rank high.

Morgan B. Callahan, loan guarantee officer of the VA regional office here, said that most complaints were directed at "new builders" here. "What few complaints established Washington builders get have been taken care of quickly," Morgan said.

Underground Lines Requested

The Fairfax County Federation of Citizens Associations has unanimously requested that Virginia Electric & Power Co. put its proposed power line underground, if practicable.

The federation took this stand at its quarterly meeting Thursday evening at the suggestion of the Annandale Citizens Association. Federation President Harold Ward cited unsightliness, danger to person and the great width (225 feet) of the right of way needed for an aerial line as reasons for the request.

This was the second time in two days that county-wide organizations have entered the controversy which originated between a few landowners and the company. On Wednesday, the County Board of Supervisors deferred action on a request that it seek an injunction to stop Vepco from constructing the 17-mile 110,000-volt line.

The Federation also referred to its member bodies a recent decision of the Board of Supervisors which cut off county advertising to the Providence Journal because of "unfair criticism." A resolution favoring impartial distribution of advertising had carried by a vote of 16 to 15, but several delegates did not vote.

Committees were appointed to:

1. Investigate the feasibility of setting up a county-wide youth movement to supercede the many separate groups now sponsored by clubs and schools.

2. Seek means to improve the badly overcrowded school conditions which, the Federation believes, will grow rapidly worse during the next year.

Film Magnate Irked by Critics

By the United Press

A movie magnate and a Hollywood "heavy" actor appealed to theater owners last night to join in a fight against "ridicule" criticism of the industry by "subversive groups."

Spyros P. Skouras, 20th Century Fox president, and Actor Edward Arnold also urged the newly-created Theater Owners of America to help the industry meet the "crisis" caused by the loss of the British and other foreign markets.

The new group, formed from the Motion Picture Theater Owners Association and the American Theaters Association, also moved to discourage further production of super-colossal "road show" movies for which extra admission is charged.

Committees Set Up

Special committees were set up to map ways to combat competition from television and to fight the license "tax" imposed on theaters by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Calling for a fight "all along the line," Skouras told the exhibitors, who represent some 10,000 theaters with 85 per cent of the Nation's movie seats, that Hollywood faces "its greatest crisis and challenge."

Arnold echoed Skouras' plea, but said he could deliver a "first hand" report that the movie capital is "not a center of gloom and pessimism."

Arnold charged that "subversive" groups opposed to free enterprise were behind the "relentless criticism" of the industry. Most of it comes from "foreign sources which were trying to build up their own picture industries, he said.

Ridicule Charged

Skouras charged that American critics had "ridiculed" the industry's "creative minds." They also "smeared the private lives of our people" and made fun of "the eccentricites of the producers."

Paul Raibourn, Paramount Pictures vice president in charge of television, told a subcommittee which set up a standing committee to keep tab on television developments, that Paramount has developed a "quick-freeze" system of putting television on movie film.

He predicted that within a year there would be enough television sets to give half the Nation's population access to the new form of entertainment.

1400 Taken Off Relief

The Board of Public Welfare's enforced economy program has dropped 1400 from relief rolls under August totals, the agency committee of the board disclosed yesterday.

The total on the rolls, as of Thursday, is 3700.

It was explained, however, that only 20 per cent of the 1400 cases dropped from the rolls have been given final review and that all will not be reviewed until October.

The report showed that old age assistance cases declined from 2300 to 1986; aid to blind from 214 to 187; general public assistance to families from 170 to 51; aid to dependent children from 1413 to 798, and general public assistance to single persons from 1136 to 679.

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 19.—More than 2000 persons passed through the entrance gates today as the first St. Marys County Fair in 20 years opened at Camp Calvert, a mile south of here.

A highlight of the three-day fair will come tomorrow night when a pretty "Queen of Tolerance" is selected from three nominees at a County Fair dance at St. Marys Seminary.

The nominees are Miss Ann Lawrence, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lawrence of Bushwood, Md.; Miss Mary Catherine Gough, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gough of Leonardtown, and Miss Mary Anna Spaulding, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Spaulding of Compton, Md.

The queen, whose title commemorates the birth of religious tolerance in St. Marys County, will be crowned by former United States Senator George L. Radcliffe after her selection by vote of the dancers.

A jousting tournament, with gayly costumed "knights," will feature the fair's final day Sunday, starting at 1 p. m.

West Virginia Offers Plan On Pollution of Potomac

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—West Virginia has suggested to Maryland a four-point program to wipe out pollution of the Potomac River with a two-State effort.

The program, suggested by Chemical Engineer K. S. Watson, will be discussed at a meeting of the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission Tuesday in the office of Dr. Robert H. Riley, health department chief, at Baltimore.

In a letter to Paul M. McKee, executive secretary of the commission, Watson suggested this attack on the Potomac pollution problem affecting the two States:

1. Gathering sufficient stream samples and analyzing them to define serious pollution by plants and municipalities.

2. Urging the larger industries to maintain laboratories and personnel to define their own pollution problems to aid in recovery and treatment.

3. Requiring municipalities to define their pollution situation with a view to handling sewage as well as industrial wastes.

4. Having State pollution regulatory bodies aid industries and municipalities with their clean-up programs.

Watson added West Virginia would necessarily "have to continue its present slow program" until Maryland has time to begin one.

Also on the commission agenda is a report from Dr. R. V. Truitt on a State-wide stream survey, and a proposed regulation to be reviewed by Assistant Attorney General Joseph D. Buscher to put legal teeth into pollution control in Maryland.

FBI Says 2 Held in Kidnap

New York, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—FBI headquarters announced today that two men were being held in New York State and West Virginia on charges of violating the Federal kidnaping statute by transporting a woman into New York State to prevent her appearance in a Charleston, W. Va., criminal action.

Edward Scheidt, special agent in charge of the New York FBI office, said the victim was Ruth Virginia Fitzwater, 24, of South Charleston, W. Va.

Scheidt charged she was abducted from West Virginia and taken to Kingston, N. Y., "in an attempt to prevent her appearance against John Marello in a pending criminal action in Charleston charging Marello with operating a house of prostitution."

"John Ferguell, 33, East Kingston, N. Y., was arrested late yesterday, and John Marello, 35, Charleston, W. Va., was arrested today in Kingston by agents of the FBI and officers of the Kingston Police Department on a charge of violating the Federal kidnaping statute popularly known as the Lindbergh Act," the announcement said.

Ferguell was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Martin Comeau in Kingston last night.

Marello was to be arraigned today in Kingston.

8 of 9 Bodies Fished From Bay B-17 Wreck

Aberdeen, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—Grapplers had recovered all but one body today and one of the motors of an Army B-17 bomber which crashed in Chesapeake Bay off the Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground Monday and killed nine of the ten aboard.

An Army spokesman said another motor had been located but not yet recovered. A board of inquiry to investigate the crash has been observing salvage operations

2 Hurt When Navy Plane Crashes in Mountains

Bedford, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—A twin-engine Navy amphibian being flown from San Francisco to Annapolis crash-landed and burned in the mountains six miles south of Moneta, Va., yesterday, but the two men aboard were only slightly hurt.

Lieut. (j. g.) W. H. Miles, the pilot, said one of the engines cut out over the mountains and he was unable to maintain altitude.

War Department Objects To Chesapeake Bay Span

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—Maryland had objections today from a second Federal agency to its financing plans of the proposed Chesapeake Bay crossing, but Governor Lane agreed the State would concur in suggested amendments making the legislation required for its construction satisfactory.

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) yesterday disclosed in Washington a letter from Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall objecting to the State's proposal to group the tolls of the new crossing with spans over the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace and the Potomac at Ludlow's Ferry.

Governor Lane was more inclined to view the Secretary's report that he had no other objections to the proposed span, particularly its engineering plans, as the important part.

Royall said the proposal to include the Potomac River span in group toll collections was contrary to law which requires the War Department to free interstate spans such as it from charges within a specified time. He suggested the elimination of the Potomac bridge from the bill authorizing construction of the Chesapeake crossing to remove his objection.

Lane said the bill could be amended as recommended without hampering the State's plans for the bridge.

The Federal Works Administration last month also voiced objection to pooling tolls from the bridges and leaving the way open for inclusion of other spans or toll roads.

The State Roads Commission is engaged in obtaining engineering data on the Chesapeake crossing between Sandy Point, Anne Arundel County, and Kent Island.

The cost of the crossing now is estimated at "upward of thirty million dollars."

Nine Groups Breed Cattle

Blacksburg, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—Virginia dairymen are now served by nine artificial breeding associations wit ha tenth scheduled to begin operation late this year, the Agricultural Extension Service reported today.

In a progress report on the artificial breeding program, Associate Extension Dairyman C. C. Graf said the associations, all organized within the past two years, now have enrolled approximately 13,500 cows and more than 1000 farmer members.

In operation, Graf said, are the Tidewater, Peninsula, Shenandoah Valley, Culpeper, Franklin, Augusta, Rockbridge, Nottoway and Loudoun Associations, served by artificial breeding centers at Culpeper, Harrisonburg, Callaway and Chuckatuck.

An Albemarle County association will be ready to begin operation soon, he added.

Cows enrolled are being bred to 11 Guernsey, 15 Holstein, and 3 Jersey bulls at the breeding centers. The centers are breeding about 650 cows monthly, Graf stated.

He said 13 of the bulls each have five or more daughters averaging 394 to 514 pounds of butterfat production annually, while eight of the others already have proved their ability to transmit high production.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Times Have Changed, But How About Daughters?

The characters are Papa, Mama, and their 16-year-old daughter. The place is the dinner table.

Papa: . . . Well I wouldn't worry about that yet, young lady. After all, it'll be some five years before you start thinking about getting married.

Daughter: But father, in the old days practically every girl was married by the time she was 16.

Papa: Yes, and in the old days steak sold for 16 cents a pound. Times have changed.

Mama: Does that mean, dear, that she'll have to put off her marriage until she's 89?

FOR BRIDGE FANS

Rudolph Rayford of 1905 4th st. nw. doesn't cross his bridges before he gets to them, but he does like to know their names afterward.

Regarding the one across Rock Creek "that's guarded by the buffaloes," he asks: "Is that the Q st. bridge or the Dumbarton ave. bridge?"

I think it's the Q st. bridge, Rudy. I never heard of any Dumbarton ave. bridge—but then I'm not much of a bridge fan, and prefer gin rummy.

SPIRIT VS. SPIRITS

We recently printed a letter from a reader who charged that fans at local football games were lacking in school spirit.

I added a reminder that our reader was talking about "spirit" and not "spirits."

Comes now a hot rejoinder From Gil Gimble of the Scholastic Sports Association. He suggests that doubting Thomases take another look at high school sports, and they'll see plenty of the old zipperoo.

The "Spirits" crack moves Gil to reply that there's plenty of drinking at college games, but not at the scholastic contests.

And anybody who infers anything to the contrary "drags high school sports through the mire as you have done, perhaps unknowingly."

OH, BROTHER (PART 2)

The other day we ran a piece about a dog named "Brother." It provoked this response from Murray V. Churchill of 1308 Michigan ave., Alexandria, Va.:

"Until I saw that item I thought mine was the only dog in the world named Brother.

"He's a Newfoundland, more or less. He weighs 160 pounds, and when he stands on his hind feet he's somewhat shorter than French's statue of Lincoln.

"His paw is as big as my fist, but his brain appears to be the size of an English walnut.

sleeping all day to save up enough energy to bark all night.

"His usefulness lies in terrifying old ladies, and in holding flashlights for men who come to rob my house."

If Brother reads this issue of the District Line, Murray, he's going to bite a great big chunk out of you—unless you convince him that you're only kidding.

WHAT BIG POLICEMEN YOU HAVE, MAJOR

M. O. Colemen is quite impressed with the size of local cops, as reported in The Washington Post.

In a story telling about thousands of people trying to jam their way into the Howard Theater, we said:

". . . 28 foot policemen were hurriedly dispatched to restore order."

DON'T TURN MY PITCHER TO THE WALL, GAL

Therese L. Rittue of 3551 S st. nw. writes:

"Don't you think you were a bit unfair the other day when you said that Sammy Baugh might turn out to be the best pitcher to appear in Griffith Stadium this season?

"I have nothing against Mr. Baugh, but what's wrong with Masterson and Wynn? Doesn't being picked for the American League all-star team mean anything? Shame on you."

Answers: Yes; nothing; you're right; and I'm sorry.

My typewriter's mouth has been washed out with soap, and we both promise to behave better hereafter.

Bobo Newsom Unravels a Tall One

NEW YORK—The other night Joe Di Maggio, Joe Page, Johnny Lindell and Allie Reynolds were at Toot Shor's celebrating the Yankees' pennant victory. They were joined by Bobo Newsom, who, during the reminiscence session said that he originally was a left-handed pitcher. "One day, with one out in the 9th inning, I was pitching against a guy expected to bunt. I threw it, and then ran in," said Newsom. "He didn't bunt, but socked a line-drive which hit my left hand and broke it. So I took off my glove, put it ony other hand and pitched right, struck out the next two guys, and never pitched left-handed again."

Newsom also told of when he was with the St. Louis Browns, and the team lost a few games when their pitchers—after getting two strikes on a batter—became over anxious and pitched a homerun ball. The manager therefore warned all his pitchers that if any of them had two strikes and no balls on a batter, and then pitched a hitable ball, the culprit would be fined $50.

The next day Newsom had two strikes and no balls on the first batter. He knew that if he'd pitch a ball which the batter would hit, he'd be fined . . . "So I took aim, wound up," said Bobo, "and pitched the next ball over the roof of the stadium."

Harry Rapf, the film executive, entered a bridge game with three men who played almost as poorly as he did. The bidding began, and Rapf's opponents bid four spades. But the wrong team then led the first card and the others continued the play. When the hand was finished it was discovered that Rapf's team had made the four spades . . . They decided to phone the Cavendish Bridge Club in New York for a ruling. They described the play to the club's referee, who duly delivered his ruling: "None of you should ever be allowed to play bridge again."

Fiorello LaGuardia, who is chairman of the Canadian-American Joint Defense Commission, insisted that there be no postponement of the regular meeting scheduled for last Friday night. It was held at LaGuardia's home . . . Darryl Zanuck says that he likes the film adaptation of "Gentleman's Agreement" so much that he is considering not releasing it but only showing it to his friends.

Nine newspapermen who have been Niemen Fellows at Harvard are at work on a survey of the United States publishing business. Their analysis, naming names and newspapers, will be published by Macmillan under the title "Your Newspaper."

Otto L. Preminger, the director, left Hollywood last week to spend a few days in New York. Before Preminger left, Harry Kurnitz, the producer-writer, suggested that after he makes his customary tour of the Colony, the Stork, El Morocco, Voisin's and Pavillion, he should be sure to go downtown, to the lower East Side, and dine at Moskowitz & Lupowitz, the Second ave. restaurant. "And when you get there, ask for the owner, Mr. Anzelowitz," Kurnitz added . . . Preminger carefully noted the names: "Kurnitz, Moskowitz, Lupowitz, Anzelowitz," and then asked: "What's the phone number?" . . . Kurnitz told him: "Gramowitz 7-9500."
